

RTA shortchanging suburbs: officials

by STEVE FORSYTH

Suburban spokesmen Monday protested what they called "inequitable funding" from the Regional Transportation Authority and asked the federal government to investigate RTA funding practices.

The RTA drew criticism during a public hearing on a $50.5 million federal grant application that would help pay operating deficits in fiscal year 1978, which started July 1.

Lois Lovey, staff assistant for the North Suburban Mass. Transit District, suggested that the Urban Mass Transportation Administration investigate the fairness of the proposed distribution of funds by the RTA.

"The NORTAN board feels that the present RTA interim funding policy for suburban bus service is arbitrary, inequitable, discriminatory and will result in a decline in suburban bus service and patronage," she said.

AN AIDE TO U.S. Rep. Abner J. Mikva, D-10th, read a statement in which Mikva warned, "If the RTA hopes to acquire additional federal funds, it and other agencies throughout the country are going to have to show that they can use the funds that are available now in the most equitable and efficient manner."

Mikva said the RTA's proposed interim policy of fully funding only bus systems that pay for 65 per cent of their own costs does not meet the criterion of fairness.

NORTAN has become the center of the funding issue because it is the first carrier to receive a grant in fiscal 1978. NORTAN has been in financial trouble and needed a grant to meet payrolls this month, but the system was not given full deficit financing because it only pays for 56 per cent of its costs.

Joseph DiJohn, NORTAN executive director, said the district can qualify for more RTA money if it drops some minimal routes, but it would have to collect the remainder of its estimated $500,000 deficit from the 21 communities in the district.

DiJohn read several letters Monday from mayors in the district who are opposed to contributing local money when RTA taxes are being used to support other systems such as the Chicago Transit Authority.

DES PLAINES Mayor Herbert Behrel sent a letter questioning the distribution of funds to the suburbs, and Niles Mayor Nicholas Blase went on record as opposing the RTA grant application. "In suburban areas, we must build routes, not cut them," Blase said.

Blase said the RTA discriminates by withholding funds from the suburbs while funding the CTA 100 per cent.

Village Pres. Virginia Hayter, Hoffman Estates, said her village cannot go ahead with transportation plans, even though a study has been completed, because there has been no definite indication of what the RTA will support.

Mrs. Hayter said Hoffman Estates needs public transit because it is five miles from each of the two commuter railroads serving the west and Northwest suburbs.

ON THE ISSUE of federal funding, Mrs. Hayter said her board is not interested in driving the federal government further into debt. She said Hoffman Estates has no position on the grant application "unless the RTA has a long-term commitment to help bring the federal budget back into balance."

She added, "I'm not so sure the black community realizes what you are doing — you're creating a problem of movement to and from the suburbs," she said.

Comments from Monday's public hearing will be sent to UMTA for review before the government takes action on the RTA grant application.

Environmental impact study planned

Village guarantees track stadium vote

The Arlington Heights Village Board voted Monday night to guarantee a public referendum on the Arlington Park Race Track football stadium proposal if trustees should ever determine the project is financially feasible or desirable.

Trustee Alice Harms, one of two trustees to vote against the referendum, declared her opposition to any municipal financing for the $35 million stadium project.

The village board also authorized the Environmental Control Commission to interview consultants and make a recommendation on hiring a firm to perform an independent study of the environmental impact on the stadium.

The ECC has termed environmental reports furnished by the stadium developer "unacceptable" because of a lack of detail and has requested an independent study of air pollution, traffic, storm water control and solid waste disposal problems.

IN A THIRD stadium-related action, the trustees voted 5 to 3 to approve a contract for bond counselors who will advise and negotiate on behalf of the village with Madison Square Garden Corp. and the Chicago Bears football club.

An Arlington Heights Park Board resolution calling for annexation of the race track to the Arlington Heights Park District was tabled until Sept. 8 in order to give officials from the Salt Creek Rural Park District, where the race track now lies, an opportunity to appear before the village board.

The trustees made it clear they were not at this time recommending approval of village revenue bond financing for the stadium or a special-use permit approving the land use.

"The board may decide the stadium is not desirable, not financially feasible and there will be no bonds — no stadium — no referendum. The project will be dead," said Trustee David Griffin, who first called for a public referendum two weeks ago.

MRS. HARMIS said she would approve a referendum on the basic question of the acceptability of a 76,000-seat stadium at the race track, but said she was now unequivocally opposed to any village financing for the facility. "The dangers inherent in a referendum are too great when it is really a question of the desirability or necessity of this stadium. I agree (with suggestions) that the municipality should decide that it will not be involved in the financing of a stadium," she said.

An audience of 150 persons, most of whom indicated they opposed the stadium, turned out for the latest round of village board decisions.

In retaining two financial advisers, Jon Nuveen and Smith Barney, the trustees stood by their earlier position that Madison Square Garden must pay the full cost of independent feasibility studies on the stadium, including the possible environmental impact report.

Village Atty. Jack M. Siegel said Madison Square Garden officials, during a closed-door negotiating session last week, stopped short of guaranteeing the fees estimated at $50,000 for each report.

They understand they will have to come up with the "front money," Siegel said at one point. But he later said corporation officials had not formally agreed to pay the costs. "They wanted to know that the board was going to go ahead with firing its financial advisers."

Nuveen and Smith, Barney will work at no cost to the village. They will be paid out of proceeds from the stadium revenue bonds if they are eventually issued. The two advisers will recommend consulting firms to investigate the financial feasibility of the stadium.

25 cents per $100 assessed valuation

Schools OK Sept. 27 tax hike referendum

by JUDY JOBBITT

A Sept. 27 referendum will be held in Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 to seek a 25-cent per $100 assessed valuation education-tax-rate increase.

The board of education Monday approved setting the 25-cent tax referendum despite an administration request for a 40-cent per $100 assessed valuation tax rate increase.

"I oppose a 40-cent increase," said Board Pres. Judith Zanca. "I'd like to recommend a 25-cent increase — 20 cents for the deficit resulting from our decreased state aid and 5 cents for inflation and other financial problems."

Supt. Roger Bardwell had recommended the higher tax-rate increase saying only 15 cents would be used initially. The remainder of the increase would have been implemented in conjunction with the required tax rate reduction in High School Dist. 214.

BOARD MEMBER Emil Bahnmaler said he could not seek a 40-cent increase, because "our track record as a board chopping back on the budget has not been the greatest."

"We must show the voters that we are not only asking for more money, but are willing to take measures to pull ourselves out" of a deficit, said Bahnmaler.

Mrs. Zanca said she opposed the 40-cent increase, because "once you give the educators the money, you lose control."

"I just don't feel I could justify any more than 25 cents," said Mrs. Zanca.

The district is projecting a $1.67 million deficit in the education and building funds for the 1975-76 school year. Surplus funds from last year and money from the working cash fund will make up for the deficit this year. However, neither fund includes salary increases this year which would add to the projected deficit.

The district also is receiving $2.1 million less from state aid this year, partly because of declining enrollment. The district also is not receiving the maximum state aid allowed, because its tax rate is below the required $1.95 per $100 assessed valuation level.

A tax increase of 15 cents per $100 assessed valuation would bring the district up to the level required by the state to receive full state aid.

JOSEPH STECKER, a Dist. 59 resident and finance committee member, said he doesn't "see how the board can ask for one single penny before I see some cutting of the budget." He presented the board with recommendations for cutting about $1 million from this year's budget.

Mrs. Zanca said the budget committee is reviewing the budget for possible cuts. Updated figures from the administration show education budget cuts of $247,644, which includes $170,792 for the Northwest Suburban Special Education deaf education program. Dist. 59 had proposed moving the deaf education program from Arlington Heights Dist. 25 to Dist. 59. The NSSEO board has decided to leave the program at its current location in Dist. 25.

Acid poured on cars at apartments

Vandals poured acid on four cars parked at the Twelve Oaks apartment complex in Arlington Heights, police were told Monday.

The cars were parked outside 1117 and 1127 S. Wilke Rd. No damage estimates were available. Vehicle owners were Paul Jurgensen, John Gatto, Jan Hanat and Nancy Dabagia.

Arlington Heights police were investigating a burglary in which cash and credit cards were reported stolen Sunday from the Karen Abler home, 1709 N. Drury Ln.

Taken were $30 in cash, four credit cards, a checkbook and a pocketbook, police were told. Police said they could find no signs of forced entry.

Housing starts highest in year

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Housing starts increased by 13.7 per cent in July to the highest level in a year, the Commerce Department reported Monday.

Building permits, which signal still more new construction, increased also but at a more modest rate of 6 per cent from June, the department said. Permits were issued at an annual adjusted rate of 1,007 million units.

The number of houses under construction in July was estimated at 1.238 million compared with a revised June rate of 1.083 million. It was the highest level since July 1974 when new units under construction totaled 1.314 million.

Housing Secretary Carla Hills said the July figures were "encouraging, particularly with regard to multifamily starts. This trend seems to indicate a continued recovery for the housing industry."

Although new home construction affects a relatively small percentage of the population at any given time, the industry's health is a significant measure of the economy as a whole.

In four major recessions since the Great Depression, housing construc-

Court nixes village's housing plea

by KURT BAER

The Village of Arlington Heights has been denied a rehearing by the U. S. Court of Appeals in the Viatorian low-income housing case.

Court judges voted 5 to 3 not to reconsider a June 10 decision in which Arlington Heights was found guilty of racial discrimination for refusing to rezone 15 acres of land east of St. Viator High School, Euclid Avenue and Dryden Place, for a subsidized housing development.

In a letter to village board members, Village Atty. Jack M. Siegel said he planned to prepare a petition to the U. S. Supreme Court for a hearing in the case.

The village has 90 days in which to file its petition asking the Supreme Court to take jurisdiction in the case by a writ of certiorari, an order to the lower court to turn over the trial record.

IF THE SUPREME Court refuses to hear the case, the appeals court decision would stand, and the village could not interfere with construction of the project.

There is no time limit for the Supreme Court to answer the village's petition. The court has adjourned for the summer, and will not reconvene until the fall.

Court battles over the Viatorian development, called Lincoln Green, have dragged on since June 1972, when the Metropolitan Housing Development Corp., which would build the project, filed suit in U. S. District Court charging that the village's refusal to rezone the property was racially discriminatory.

After a six-day trial in January 1974, U. S. District Court Judge Thomas R. McMillen upheld the village's position that the rejection was based solely on zoning considerations.

MHDC APPEALED McMillen's ruling to the U. S. Court of Appeals which reversed the lower court in a 2 to 1 decision June 10. Six days later, the village board voted unanimously to appeal the case to the U. S. Supreme Court.

Before filing with the high court, Siegel said he would ask for a rehearing in the appeals court, either by the same three judges who heard the case originally or by all the judges in the Seventh Circuit.

Turndown of the rehearing request does not prejudice the village's chances for review by the Supreme Court, Siegel said.

tion has provided a primary stimulus for recovery. As long as housing construction remains weak, the economy will be sluggish and job opportunities few for the nation's 7.8 million unemployed.

All segments of the housing industry and all regions of the country contributed to the July gain, the report said.

The report followed these mixed developments in housing:

- Mutual savings banks said savings deposits to finance home mortgages dropped 35 per cent in July.

- New home prices soared 50.4 per cent to $40,600 in the past five years, the Mortgage Bankers Association said. Spendable earnings for an urban worker climbed only 35 per cent in the same period, suggesting that home ownership is becoming more difficult.

- Interest rates advanced 0.15 per cent to 9.32 per cent in the latest auction of federally backed mortgages. This indicates builders and lenders suspect mortgage interests costs will be even higher by winter.

- Housing starts in the nation's largest urban areas will be 22 per cent lower than last year, according to the National Association of Home Builders. With the July rate being much higher than NAHB projection of 1.06 million units, this would indicate starts may decline in the next few months.

In other economic developments Monday:

- Former presidential economic advisor Herbert Stein said economic recovery has begun but warned that increased food and fuel prices could spark another wave of inflation.

Stein predicted a rise of 7 to 8 per cent in total output, a one per cent drop in unemployment and a six or seven per cent increase in the Consumer Price Index. But he emphasized the possibility of "a new, imminent surge of inflation," linked to the prices of grain and oil. He said, however, that the environment for an accelerated wage-price spiral is less favorable than it was from 1972 to 1974.

- Economic experts of the International oil cartel opened a week-long meeting in Vienna to recommend the size of the increase in the price of oil this fall. The Organization of Oil Exporting Countries already has decided to raise the price when the present nine-month freeze at $10.47 a barrel expires Sept. 30. The experts are drawing up technical reports so their oil ministers, at their meeting Sept.

24, can decide how high the price increase should be.

- AFL-CIO President George Meany insisted that dock workers won't load Soviet-purchased American grain onto any ship until administration officials come to him with guarantees that American consumers and shippers will not be hurt by the deal. Meany issued the statement after meeting with the AFL-CIO's maritime union leaders, whose threatened boycott he already had endorsed.

- The Federal Trade Commission said four of the biggest manufacturers of stereo systems in the country have agreed not to engage in price fixing or other selling practices which it said have resulted in higher consumer prices.

The order is the first result of an industrywide investigation of the stereo business. Named in the order were U.S. Pioneer Electronics Corp., Moonachie, N.J.; TEAC Corp. of America, Montebello, Calif.; Sherwood Electronic Laboratories Inc., Chicago; and Sansui Electronics Corp., Woodside, N.Y.

3-cents a gallon gasoline rise seen

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Energy Administration said Monday gasoline prices would increase an average of three cents per gallon with the end of oil price controls.

President Ford intends to soften the effect of decontrol by ending special fees on imported oil, even if it means pulling back from some of his goals for cutting energy demand in this country, Deputy FEA Administrator Eric Zausner told reporters.

Zausner released a detailed economic analysis of the end of price controls, which lapse Aug. 31.

The end of controls would probably boost gasoline prices six or seven cents a gallon as the 60 per cent of American oil that is held at $5.25 a barrel rose to the uncontrolled world price level of around $13 a barrel, the analysis said.

But Zausner said Ford will also remove import tariffs of $2 a barrel, and that will dilute the effect of decontrol to about three cents a gallon by the end of the year.

Policemen strike in San Francisco

Policemen went on strike in San Francisco Monday, leaving only a small force to deal with crime in the city of 750,000 persons. The city's firemen joined the police on the picket line and threatened to strike on their own. "It's a major walkout," a spokesman for the police department said. Firemen helped on the picket lines and threatened to walk out of their stations either Tuesday or Wednesday unless the 13 per cent pay increase, which they would also receive under the city charter, was implemented.

Hoffa wouldn't ignore wife's illness

Investigators in Detroit said Monday the illness of his wife would bring Jimmy Hoffa home — if the former Teamsters president is alive. "Jimmy is too much of a family man to ignore this," one federal official said, "and if he's alive, this is the time when he would turn up, no matter what." Josephine Hoffa collapsed at home Sunday and was rushed to a Detroit hospital suffering from what her son called "strain and stress" arising from Hoffa's disappearance 18 days earlier. Mrs. Hoffa's doctor said she is in stable condition.

Ford to fight U.S. recall order

The Ford Motor Co. went into court Monday to fight a government order to recall and pay for repairs on more than 600,000 Mustangs and Cougars with allegedly defective seat backs that could collapse. Ford notified the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration that it will not comply with last week's recall order covering the 1968 and 1969 models. It said it does not believe the alleged defect constitutes a legal safety defect.

Florida abortion-consent law struck down

A federal appeals court Monday struck down a Florida law requiring unwed mothers to get their parents' consent and married women the consent of their husbands before having an abortion. A three-judge panel of the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals upheld a lower court ruling that both requirements were unconstitutional.

Patients claim they were 'guinea pigs'

A panel of former mental patients told a Senate Judiciary subcommittee Monday that large doses of drugs given them in mental hospitals turned them into "zombies" and made them "psychiatric guinea pigs." The six described periods when they lost physical control over their bodies, sometimes unable to read or speak.

Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., subcommittee chairman, said: "We cannot sit by and let children in the nation, because they are without parents, or troubled, or handicapped be boxed up, shipped off and held captive with medical or chemical handcuffs."

Burning refinery fuel valve turned off

Three volunteer fire fighters with "a lot of guts" battled their way in a small boat through blazing fuel Monday to shut off the valve of a Philadelphia refinery gas tank that was feeding a spectacular two-day blaze which killed six city firemen.

Daring U.S. pilot lifts 3 to freedom

An American helicopter pilot swooped into Communist Czechoslovakia Sunday, picked up two men and a teen-aged girl and lifted off through a hail of bullets to freedom in West Germany, Munich officials reported Monday. The pilot, Barry Meeker, 34, was shot twice and his rented helicopter was damaged, forcing him to abandon a plan to rescue two men and possibly a woman left behind.

Blast rocks Algerian embassy in Rome

A pre-dawn explosion jolted the Algerian embassy in Rome Monday and bombs were found in the embassies in London and Bonn. A group calling itself the "Soldiers of the Algerian Opposition" claimed responsibility and vowed to bring down the regime of President Houari Boumedienne. There were no reported injuries in the Rome explosion. The bombs planted at the Algerian embassies in London and Bonn were found and defused before they could go off.

Communists, angry mob hit by army's gunfire

LISBON, Portugal (UPI) — Army troops and police opened automatic weapons fire Monday night on both Communists and an angry mob of 5,000 who stormed the Communist headquarters and burned it to the ground in a northern town.

One person was reported killed and more than 100 injured in the riot in Ponte de Lima.

Police said troops and police used automatic weapons fire in an unsuccessful attempt to halt the attack by an estimated 5,000 persons who stormed the party headquarters, set it on fire and blocked firemen from extinguishing the blaze.

Party members inside the headquarters sprayed gunfire into the mob and witnesses said troops fired back on the Communists.

A fireman identified the dead man as Jose da Costa Lima, a Communist who was inside the headquarters and was struck by a bullet. Witnesses said he was probably killed when the troops opened fire.

Earlier in the day a mob burned down a Communist party headquarters in Angra do Heroismo in the Azores Islands. Agitation in the strategically important islands in the mid-Atlantic has been growing for several months.

A Ponte de Lima hospital spokesman said "there may be more than 100 injured. We don't have time to count them. It's impossible with all the work we have."

He said three persons were injured seriously, one of them a soldier.

Ford sees more Russ grain sales

DES MOINES, Iowa (UPI) — President Ford predicted Monday the United States will sell still more grain to the Soviet Union, and promised American farmers continuation of policies encouraging "full production" to boost their incomes.

He made the pledge in a speech at the state fair in drought-stricken Iowa, on the second stop of a two-day trip through four states spotlighting his domestic policies and seeking early support of his 1976 candidacy.

Ford flew to the Iowa capital after spending the morning inspecting an oil shale mining operation high in the Rocky Mountains to underscore the nation's energy needs.

The President arranged to address a GOP fund-raising dinner in Des Moines to help ball out the Iowa Republican Party, which is $70,000 in the red, before going to Minneapolis, Minn., where he meets Tuesday with regional news media executives and addresses the American Legion's annual convention.

The President then will arrive in Pekin, Ill., where he will make a dedication speech at the Everett McKinley Dirksen Congressional Research Center.

After the dedication, Ford will answer questions at the Central Illinois White House Conference on Domestic and Economic Affairs in Peoria.

PRESIDENT FORD tours the Paraho experimental oil shale site on Colorado's Western slope in Rifle.

The process heats the rock and extracts the oil. Today, Ford visits Pekin, Ill.

U.S. guarantees called 'unprecedented'

Rabin shouts down the opposition

by United Press International
Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin, facing demands he resign and demonstrations denouncing his policies as a sellout, shouted down jeering opposition deputies in Parliament Monday and said the government was "exhausting every possibility of advancing towards peace."

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, scheduled to arrive in Israel Thursday to resume his shuttle diplomacy also came under fire for his role in the negotiations aimed at working out a second troop withdrawal agreement in the Sinai.

Before the Knesset session, Rabin told a caucus of his ruling Labor alignment Monday that guarantees from the United States were "unprecedented in our relationship."

Observers said he was presumably referring to a proposed U.S. civilian watch force and to reports the United States would give Israel $3 billion in aid to make up for the return of the Abu Rodeis oil field to Egypt.

Rabin told the Knesset the interim peace negotiations with Egypt had reached an advanced stage but warned they could still fall through.

"There are indications of agreement on a series of subjects, but issues of importance are still in dispute," Rabin told the Knesset during a stormy session.

"The policy of the government has been and is to exhaust every possibility of advancing towards peace taking limited risks."

The prime minister's half-hour speech was interrupted several times by the jeers and catcalls of opponents.

At one point, in an apparent answer to charges from his critics, Rabin said Israel would sign an agreement "only if we are convinced that it will be to the betterment of Israel's needs."

Outside the Knesset building in Jerusalem and the U.S. Embassy in Tel Aviv rightwing protesters chanted slogans and carried signs denouncing the proposed settlement.

"Kissinger go home!" and "Rabin, You're a Rabbitt!" they shouted outside the embassy building on the Mediterranean seafloor. Demonstrators held up live rabbits to demonstrate their scorn for what they considered Rabin's concessions to Egypt.

Fifty women paraded around the plaza outside the Knesset building during the debate, some of them wearing dog collars and leashes attached to an effigy of Kissinger.

Bail set at $700,000 for Bronfman suspects

NEW YORK (UPI) — A fireman and his church-going neighbor — "two amateurs involved in some sort of a lark" — were ordered jailed on combined $700,000 bail Monday on charges of kidnapping Seagram's whisky heir Samuel Bronfman II and threatening to kill him and his billionaire father to gain a $2.3 million ransom.

The FBI complaint filed in court revealed for the first time that the elder Bronfman's life was threatened in addition to that of his 21-year-old son. At their arraignment in Manhattan Federal Court, U.S. Magistrate Martin Jacobs set bail at $500,000 for bachelor fireman Mel Patrick Lynch, 37, and $200,000 for his accomplice, Dominic Byrne, 53, operator of a limousine service and an usher at Our Lady of Refuge Church.

U.S. Attorney Paul Curran had asked Jacobs to set bail at $750,000 for Lynch and at $500,000 for Byrne, because he believed that the Irish-born suspects might flee to their homeland if released.

The prosecutor had no comment on reports that federal agencies are investigating the possibility that the suspects may have intended to use part of the ransom to provide funds for the Irish Republican Army. In Dublin and Belfast, spokesmen for the IRA denied the suspects had any connection with their organization. A member of the IRA Dublin said "We have never heard of either of the two men in any connection."

A two-page complaint filed by the government against the defendants charged that they sent a letter to Edgar Bronfman on Aug. 11 "demanding a ransom for the safe release of his son, Samuel, and further informing him that both he and his son would die if payment was not made as instructed."

The FBI said the elder Bronfman Saturday paid a $2.3 million ransom which was recovered. FBI agents and city police the next day broke into Lynch's apartment and allegedly found him standing guard over young Bronfman.

Squinting through steel-rimmed glasses, the paunchy, 5-foot-3 Byrne, married and the father of two children, said "Yes, sir" when asked if he understood the charges.

Freshmen learn basics for survival in college

by WANDALYN RICE

College freshmen may be better prepared than ever before, but they also are more serious about taking advice on how to make it in school.

That, at least, is the impression James Blackwell, a Purdue University dean, has from traveling around the country this summer teaching a course called "How to Study in College."

Blackwell was in Palatine last week teaching the course, developed by Purdue University for its own incoming freshmen, to a group of about 30 students at the Buehler YMCA.

Midway through one of his lectures, he paused to comment, "Students are extremely serious this year. You'll never get a college classroom as attentive as this group is."

THE STUDENTS did, indeed, seem to take Blackwell and the course seriously, carefully noting the five methods for taking lecture notes outlined during the lecture and reappearing promptly after a 10-minute break.

"I think this will help," one girl said to a friend as the first class broke up. "At least I hope so."

The course has been taught at Purdue for about 15 years, Blackwell said. During the mid-1960s the university began teaching the course around the country to students about to start school.

The message of the course, Blackwell said, is summed up in the slogan "There is no substitute for daily preparation," a motto students are asked to recite every time a small alarm clock he carries goes off.

"I know it's really a corny gimmick," he told his Palatine class, "but let's face it, every morning when you hear your alarm clock, instead of throwing it at the wall, you should think 'there's no substitute for daily preparation.'"

THE GIMMICK, Blackwell said, is usually accepted with good humor by classes. "I had one class where during the last session first one alarm clock and then another went off and every time the class would shout the motto. I didn't know it but about five guys had brought alarm clocks and the whole class was in on it."

The course, during four evening sessions, covers such subjects as taking lecture notes and studying for tests.

"You've got to have fun when you go to college," he said, "but you can only have fun if you've got the academic part down. Whatever you do, don't get so far behind that if you had a spare weekend to catch up you'd have a nervous breakdown."

Blackwell also emphasizes for students the difference between high school and college. "Let's face it," he said, "you didn't study in high school. If you did, you'd be the first group in history to do it."

As a few students nodded knowingly, he continued, "In college, no one is going to require daily homework. Your grade may depend on just one or two tests, and it's awfully hard to study this week when you see a test six weeks down the road."

Blackwell said the content of the course has changed over the years as college students have changed. "Every high school class that comes out is better prepared," he said. "We don't spend as much time talking about the amount of reading required or about term papers because they get that in high school."

JAMES BLACKWELL of Purdue University gives students lectures just like they will have in college in a course on "How to Study in College" offered around the country by Purdue staff. The class was last week at Buehler YMCA in Palatine.

The person on the phone says he bought some dope in a local forest preserve. The pusher told him it was acid, but he wants it analyzed.

The counselor at Spectrum Youth Services Bureau in Schaumburg Township tells him to take the drug to a drop-off center in Northfield and call back in a couple of days.

What the caller thought was acid was really ground-up film negative, said Larry Walker, Spectrum director. The users were taking the so-called "drug" through their eyes.

WALKER REMEMBERS that incident last summer and many more cases in which illegal street drugs were analyzed and turned out to be something other than what the users thought they were buying.

In March, a lid of blotter acid that sold for $2 "wasn't even a drug at all. It was just a piece of paper with a stain on it," he said.

Spectrum is one of several youth agencies in the Chicago metropolitan area that uses drug analysis as a means of combating drug abuse. By "giving people accurate information about what's on the street," Walker hopes to put some pushers out of business and bring drug abusers in for counseling.

But drug analysis has been a controversial topic among Northwest suburban officials, who question whether analysis has any effect on drug abuse. Some feel it may do more harm than good.

"We've been trying to get it (drug analysis) established in the Northwest suburbs," said Ralph Morris, professor at the college of pharmacology at the University of Illinois Circle Campus and Palatine's drug adviser. Efforts to establish a drug analysis program locally have run into opposition, he said.

PUBLIC OFFICIALS are "very much concerned about the drug image at the youth centers" in the area and are hesitant to establish drug analysis centers, fearing the youth centers would gain reputations as havens for drug addicts, Morris said. "Township people, particularly in Elk Grove, didn't want public funds going to a place with this image," he said.

Morris does not dispute the argument that analysis has the effect of "improving the quality of drugs" sold on the street, but he strongly opposes the theory that pushers will use drug analysis services to establish their reputations as sellers of pure drugs.

According to a federal law, a drug analyzer cannot reveal the potency of a drug he has tested, Morris said. He can state what substances are found in a drug, but not in what proportion. "No pusher can really get any valuable information from a drug analysis program," he said.

Drug analysis was first used in California, and the system there "set the pattern" for other states which have implemented the program, Morris said. A drug analysis program has been in operation in Illinois for more than two years through Alternatives, Inc., Chicago.

Currently, five drop-off centers are in operation in the Chicago metropolitan area. The closest to the Northwest suburbs is in the Irene Josselyn Clinic in Northfield.

YOUTH CENTERS such as Spectrum take calls from drug users requesting analysis and refer them to a drop-off center. The user takes the drug to the drop-off center and places it in an envelope with an identification number. The drugs are then taken to G. D. Searle & Co. in Skokie, where they are analyzed. The results are relayed back to the drop-off center and to the youth agency. The user obtains the results by calling the agency and giving his identification number.

Searle laboratories became involved in drug analysis in February 1974, a Searle technician said. One of the company's employees, who is involved in a youth agency in the North suburbs, began analyzing drugs secretly at Searle after hours, the technician said. The company later decided to undertake the analysis program on a trial basis.

Last February, Searle adopted the program and placed $25,000 in its annual budget for drug analysis. Searle is just now beginning to publicize its involvement in the drug analysis program.

Searle receives an average of 15 to 20 drug samples per week but has the capacity to analyze many more samples. The technician said 60 to 75 per cent of the drugs analyzed are not what they were sold as. No lethal substances have been found in the so-called drugs. The "drugs" usually contain caffeine or another relatively harmless substance. A sample of "heroin" brought in for analysis recently turned out to be powdered sugar.

DRUG ANALYSIS does "little or nothing" to curb drug abuse, said the technician. Its primary purpose is to put the drug abuser in contact with a youth center for counseling when the results are returned.

Spectrum is the only youth service in the Northwest suburbs which uses drug analysis extensively. Walker said Spectrum receives four to eight requests for analysis a month. Each month, the agency distributes a local dope sheet, giving the results of analysis. The sheets are distributed to other youth agencies, schools, hospitals, police and fire departments.

Reaction to the dope sheet has been "almost totally favorable," Walker said, and it has even caused some parents to bring in for analysis "something they think might be a drug."

BUT WHILE Walker thinks drug analysis is a good idea, he is against establishing a drop-off center in the Northwest suburbs. "I just don't think it would be a manageable system," he said. A drop-off center would pose a security problem, he said, when users place the drugs in a drop-off box.

Drug analysis in the Chicago area is monitored and coordinated by the Cook County Sheriff's Office to make sure the program conforms with the law. Cooperation with local police is essential to the success of the drug analysis program to protect the drop-off centers from undue police surveillance.

Police in the Northwest suburbs have mixed feelings about drug analysis. Some believe a drop-off center in the Northwest suburbs could pose a serious crime problem.

Stock market declines in day of slow trading

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stock prices fell irregularly Monday in the second slowest trading session of the year on the New York Stock Exchange as the market failed to support an early blue chip rally attempt.

"This is sort of like Chinese torture," said Rosemary Pavlick, analyst for Harris, Upham. "The market has been washing out certain issues which were leaders in the first-half advance."

The Dow Jones Industrial average of 30 selected blue-chip stocks, up more than three points at the outset, lost 2.89 to 822.75. It had gained 8.60 points Friday in a bargain-hunting advance.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index fell 0.16 to 88.20. The average price of an NYSE common share decreased by five cents. Advances chipped declines, 638 to 633, among the 1,748 issues crossing the tape.

Volume totaled only 10,810,000 shares, second slowest of the year. Friday's 10,610,000 shares was the slowest.

Uncertainty over the economic recovery has been one major reason investors have retreated to the sidelines, according to most analysts. A large number of economists believe the recovery will be moderate or slow.

Miss Pavlick said National Semiconductor was this session's "wash out" victim. The stock was the second most active on the Big Board, falling 2 1/4 points to 3-5/8 on 121,000 shares. It was among the leaders in the market's rally the first half of the year.

MacMillan led the actives, finishing unchanged at 4 5/8 on 206,100 shares, including a block of 199,900 shares at 4 1/4. Westinghouse Electric was third, up 3/8 to 15 5/8 on 114,200 shares.

County holds credentials

NSSEO rehires psychologist

School psychologist John Whipple has been rehired by the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization board, the same board which fired him Aug. 6 for failure to be certified as a school psychologist.

Whipple, director of NSSEO's Center for Child and Family Studies, was given until last Saturday to show he is properly certified. Whipple's credentials are being held by County School Supt. Richard Martwick as a result of Whipple's one-year suspension last fall on the grounds he was acting without proper certification. At that time, Whipple was administrator at Dwyer School for emotionally disturbed children, Arlington Heights. Whipple has been appealing that charge. A decision on the appeal is expected in September.

The recommendation to fire Whipple came from Edward McDonald, NSSEO executive director. Sources said the recommendation was made because Whipple has been unable to renew his psychology certificate because of the action pending on the suspension.

Saturday the NSSEO board agreed to rehire Whipple after Whipple and his attorney Stephen Jurco presented evidence of Whipple's certification. "We have sent a photocopy of John's certificate," said Jurco, who said he was "puzzled" by the chain of events that has led to the dismissal and rehiring of his client. "This whole thing has resulted in bad publicity for Mr. Whipple which has been uncalled for," he said.

St. James youth dance

The youth group of St. James Catholic Church is sponsoring a dance for high school students Aug. 29.

The dance will be at the parish center, 841 N. Arlington Heights Rd. "Horizon" will play from 8 to 11 p.m. Admission is $2, with proceeds going to the youth group.

BUNGLE IN THE Jungle was the theme of a dance routine presented by the Highland Lads and Lassies 4-H Club of Arlington Heights during a contest at the Illinois State Fair, Springfield. The group was awarded an "A" rating in the "Share the Fun Contest."

New minimum 5 feet 5 inches

Village lowers police height requirement

The Arlington Heights Fire and Police Commission has lowered the minimum height requirement for police personnel to 5 feet 5 inches.

The commission voted to lower the requirement from 5 feet 8 inches because the old standard was potentially discriminatory and not related to job performance.

Gregory Ford, village personnel director, told the commission the previous height standard has been viewed as discriminatory against Americans of Hispanic descent. Ford said the village would find it difficult to defend the old standard in a suit filed in conjunction with the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission.

The village could face a suspension of federal funds pending the outcome of a court battle, such as happened to the City of Chicago recently, Ford said.

"WE COULD LOSE revenue-sharing funds because of court action. And if the town loses those funds the proverbial stuff would hit the fan," he told the commission.

"The old standard was open to challenge," he said.

However, the old standard was not a "hard and fast rule," Ford said. Under the commission's rules it could be waived for "good cause," he said.

Height requirements for village firefighters will remain at 5 feet 8 inches. Fire Chief John Hayden said personnel must be that tall to remove ladders from the top of the trucks.

The commission is also reviewing the physical agility tests being given to applicants for the police force to determine whether they are an accurate appraisal of how well a patrolman could perform his field duties. The test being given is one recommended by the Illinois State Board of Fire and Police Commissions, Ford said.

CHAIRMAN ALLEN K. Miller said in changing the height standard the commission was keeping in line with the "consensus" across the country and avoiding possible court challenges.

"We don't want to put the Village of Arlington Heights in an embarrassing position. As long as the man can do the job to which he has been assigned, that's fine," Miller said.

He said the commission's task was to find "the best men for the jobs" and not to place the village in "jeopardy."

Police Chief L. W. Calderwood said he would prefer to keep the old standard, but "there is no sense in fighting it."

Calderwood said if the old standard is stricken, he would like to see all height requirements done away with. In its place, he said, he would like to see a physical test that parallels "regular routine patrol duties" to determine if an applicant could handle the job.

He said he was unaware of any department that had instituted such a policy instead of the height requirement.

FORD SAID the 5-foot 5-inch minimum was agreed to by the commission because of equipment considerations. He said other towns had found that shorter persons had difficulty in operating the squad cars because shotgun racks and radio gear prevented the seat from being moved close enough to the steering wheel and foot pedals for the shorter person.

Comm. Howard Pollard said that while the commission was examining the relation of physical tests to field performance, "let's not take that too literally."

He said, "We will probably still have the rope climb, for example, although we don't expect there would be many situations where a policeman would be called upon to climb up a rope. But it is a good test of a person's motor coordination and strength."

Ford said some communities found their physical requirements overly stringent when they were reexamined. As one example, he said Dearborn, Mich., required its police officers to have better vision than either FBI agents or jet fighter pilots.

Ford said lowering the height requirements would not lower the caliber of police officers. He said the new standard would be more representative of the community at large while maintaining high standards of performance in the field.

He said while poorer performances by policemen below the old 5-foot 8-inch standard have not been shown, surveys indicate shorter officers tend to be assaulted more frequently.

Bonds, silver dollars stolen from home

Burglars Monday took six U.S. savings bonds and $25 in silver dollars from the Carl Pech home, 504 W. Mayfair Rd., Arlington Heights.

The break-in occurred sometime between 7 a.m. and 6 p.m. Monday. Police said burglars forced open a screen door to gain entry to the home.

Hostess calms fears of X-ray room

Pat Terzo brings warmth to cold hospital routine

by LINDA PUNCH

Pat Terzo is waging a one-woman battle against the cold, impersonal routine for which most hospitals are known.

Mrs. Terzo, a nursing assistant at Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, is the unofficial hostess of the X-ray department. Her job is to bring warmth to the unfamiliar surroundings of the hospital.

"People like to know why they're waiting so long for an X-ray or have questions about the procedure. I try to answer all their questions," Mrs. Terzo said.

Ina Lee, X-ray coordinator, said hospital officials felt there was a need for someone to explain hospital routine, answer questions and tend to patients' needs during their visits to the X-ray department.

"We tried to indoctrinate our orderlies to explain procedures and answer questions but they usually don't have the time. If people are told what to expect, they're not quite as apprehensive," she said.

MOST PEOPLE react favorably to Mrs. Terzo but she said there are others "you can't make happy no matter what you do — but you try anyway."

"Some people are just plain worried and don't want to talk. Then there are others who want to talk about anything," she said.

Mrs. Terzo began her hospital career as a volunteer nearly five years ago.

"I always wanted to be a nurse but I ended up getting married and having a family. I decided to do volunteer work. I started at one day a week, went to two days a week and then decided I didn't care what hours they gave me because I wanted to work," she said.

MRS. TERZO spent the "first week or so watching a lot of routines so I know exactly what it involves," reading about patient care and attending lectures on radiological procedures. Her job entails everything from assisting in X-ray procedures to just plain socializing with waiting patients.

Mrs. Terzo said she is fascinated by medical procedures but admits patient contact is the favorite part of the job.

"We had one man here who was 2,000 miles away from home. He was scared and just wanted someone to hold his hand. That's the kind of thing I like," she said.

Irving-Lake captures opener, 7-1

Rain continues to hit national tourney

Special to The Herald

SEATTLE, Wash. — The name "Al Pondel" was twice etched into Senior Babe Ruth National Tournament records late Sunday evening here at Sick Stadium, one-time home for the defunct American League Pilots.

But Pondel, the fine Irving-Lake All-Stars pitcher from Illinois, certainly would have settled for just one listing.

That would be the mention of Pondel's effective four-hitter (all singles) for a 7-1 victory over Brooklyn (N.Y.) which put Irving-Lake into the winners bracket and assured the Illinois team of one and possibly two days rest.

The other, less fortunate category for Pondel was any hurler's greatest enemy... the wild pitch.

Pondel threw four of them during the seven-inning game. And his three wild pitches in the fifth set a Senior Babe Ruth National Tournament record.

Brooklyn, the Mid-Atlantic champion, scored its single run off Pondel in the fifth without a hit.

Jim Dreach walked and moved ahead one base on Pondel's third wild pitch of the evening and second that game. Dreach reached third when first baseman Jim Dastice dropped a throw, Rich McElroy reaching base.

Then Pondel's fourth wild pitch, and third that inning, allowed Dreach to ruin the shutout.

But Pondel's temporary control problems were only a mild aggravation for Irving-Lake which had nearly everything going its way from the start.

Lou Bocci's ballclub scored once in the first inning, then added four runs in the second for a 5-0 bulge. After Brooklyn drew within 5-1, Irving-Lake responded with its final two runs in the visitors' sixth.

Irving-Lake, Sacramento (Calif.) Kirkland (Wash.) and host Seattle were the unbeaten clubs through Sunday when just four-of-six scheduled games had been played.

Rainstorms washed out Saturday's two opening games. So the Babe Ruth Tournament was already two games behind when rains struck again on Monday, knocking out both afternoon games.

Tournament managers were hopeful that Lubbock (Tex.) could play Narragansett (R.I.) and Seattle could meet Prattville (Ala.) on Monday night.

But those games also appeared doubtful. The effect for Irving-Lake could be two days rest, pushing its second game back to Wednesday against Seattle or Prattville.

Complete Sunday scores, aside from Irving-Lake's win, found Sacramento over Lubbock, 4-0; Seattle over Narragansett, 3-0; and Kirkland over defending champion Sugar Creek (Mo.) 1-0.

In Sunday's final game, Irving-Lake wasted no time jumping on Brooklyn losing pitcher and starter Greg Ricetti. Glenn Stromberg's walk, Pete Pavlich's sacrifice and Russ Zonca's RBI single put Irving-Lake quickly ahead, 1-0, in the first.

Ricetti didn't last even two full innings as Irving-Lake led, 5-0, through two turns at-bat. Pondel started a four-run second with his triple, scoring on Dastice's single.

Dastice moved quickly ahead on a passed ball and wild pitch before Ricetti picked him off third. But that only partially slowed down Irving-Lake.

Jim Cole and Glenn Laney each walked. When Stromberg singled for a 3-0 lead, Ricetti was gone in favor of relief pitcher Gary Orlando.

So it was Orlando who yielded Pavlich's two-run single which completed Irving-Lake's second inning scoring.

Dastice and Cole singled to start Irving-Lake's sixth inning rally. Pinch-runner Matt Luquet, for Dastice, and Cole scored the runs. Luquet came across on a throwing error by Brooklyn catcher Tom DiConstanza.

Cole tallied the game's final run when Laney dropped a base hit bunt.

In doubles Robert White of Deerfield and Fernando Velasco of Chicago beat Jim Merkel of Arlington Heights and Tranter 6-3, 3-6, 7-6.

Lake Michigan salmon bonanza

The incredible harvest of salmon from Lake Michigan this spring and summer continues to exceed everyone's expectations... from the anglers themselves to the charter boat captains.

Silvery-blue coho are still head-quartered off Waukegan where the average size of this species has ballooned to nine pounds.

The hottest lure on the lake is a green Manistee spoon fished 20-40 feet down in 200-250 feet of water behind a slow troll.

Chinook are also getting better — in the 22-30 pound range and have been hitting blue flies fished behind red dodgers. Steelhead are only "fair" and brown trout fishing is rated poor.

Once you strike it rich on Lake Michigan or any other body of water in Illinois, for that matter, be sure to enter the Illinois Record and Big Fish Contest.

Unknown to many anglers, the tournament is open to anyone using a pole and line and not fishing fee areas. The fish must be weighed to the nearest ounce on scales legal for trade with two witnesses present and measured to the nearest 1/16 inch.

State records must be certified by a fishery biologist and a photograph of the fish entered is necessary. Eleven entries have been made thus far this year, including an 8-pound largemouth, 4-pound, 7-ounce smallmouth, 19-pound, 6-ounce striped bass, 2-pound, 6-ounce bluegill, 8-pound, 1 1/4-ounce bowfin, 11-pound, 5 1/4-ounce channel catfish, 45-pound flathead catfish, 19-pound, 10-ounce northern pike, 28-pound, 8-ounce brown trout, 3-pound, 1/2 ounce tiger trout and a 10-pound, 15-ounce wall-eye.

Project Illini purchased 700 muskie-northern hybrids and pure muskies which were stocked by the Illinois Department of Conservation into Spring Lake in Manitowish.

Originally, the muskie were earmarked for Lake Shelbyville, but funding fell short of the goal. The fish were 10 inches in length when stocked and must grow to 30 inches before they can legally be taken.

Applications for Horicon Zone Canada goose hunting permits are now available at most Wisconsin license outlets.

Applicants must indicate the serial number of their new 1975-76 hunting license and must submit the application by Sept. 11, 1975. Only one application is allowed per person.

The hunting permit that successful applicants will receive in early October is slightly different from the one used last year and hunters are urged to read the instructions carefully before going afield.

Waterfowl regulations have not yet been approved but the Horicon goose season is expected to run from Oct. 9-24. The bag limit is one Canada goose per season.

The federal quota of Canada geese is the same for both Wisconsin and Illinois, 28,000 birds. Of Wisconsin's 28,000 birds, 16,000 may be taken in the Horicon Zone. This is the same quota as last year when 58,000 applications were received for Horicon tags.

WICKES FURNITURE is the 1975 Paddock Publications Inter-League Handicap Golf Tournament champion. The foursome won the 26th annual tourney Sunday at Buffalo Grove with a low net of 287. They are, from

Illinois State cage coach quits

Will Robinson, the head basketball coach at Illinois State University at Normal for the past five years, resigned Monday to become director of scouting services with the Detroit Pistons of the NBA.

Robinson, 64, was the first black head basketball coach at a major university when he came to Illinois State in 1970. In his five seasons, his teams recorded a 78-51 record. He never had a losing season here and his team's best year was the 1973-74 season, in which it finished with a 17-9 record. He also has turned out five players who were drafted by pro teams, including All-America Doug Collins, now with the Philadelphia 76ers.

Robinson had announced earlier this year that the coming season would be his last after 43 years of coaching. But he said the opportunity to enter pro basketball "was one of those things you can't turn down. I wish I could defer it for another year, but you have to take it when the opportunity presents itself."

Before coming to Illinois State, Robinson spent 38 years as a high school coach, 26 of them in Detroit with three high schools. His high school teams won state championships in 1967 and 1970. He coached a number of outstanding players including Spencer Haywood and Ralph Simpson.

Dodgers, Hooton nip Cubs

Back to back homers by Ron Cey and Steve Yeager in the fifth inning carried Burt Hooton to his fifth straight victory and 11th of the season Monday in a 3-1 triumph for the Los Angeles Dodgers over the Chicago Cubs at Wrigley Field.

Willie Crawford opened the fifth for the Dodgers with a single and scored on Cey's 15th homer. Two pitches later, Yeager homered to hand starter Steve Stone his first loss in five games and his sixth of the season against 11 wins.

Stone gave way after eight innings for a pinchhitter with Tom Detorre finishing the game, while Hooton was lifted in the eighth for Mike Marshall with runners on first and third and two out.

Marshall got Jose Cardenal to hit into a force out and earned his 12th save of the season.

The Cubs scored in the first inning on Don Kessinger's single, an infield out and Bill Madlock's single. They threatened in the ninth when Jerry Morales walked and Andy Thornton singled with no out. But Manny Trillo's attempted sacrifice backfired when Morales was out at third. Pinchhitter John Summers then struck out and Gene Hise filed out.

It was the eighth win in the last 10 games for the Dodgers.

Chicagoans having ups, downs

Chicago Cubs pitcher Steve Stone lost a base hit by an umpire's ruling Monday. After reaching first base, the Dodgers protested that the pine tar on the handle of Stone's bat extended too far up the barrel. The umpire crew concurred.

Cubs' public relations director Chuck Shriver will resign on Sept. 1 to join the San Diego Padres of the ABA... The Chicago Black Hawks signed defenseman Mike O'Connell, son of former Chicago Bears and Cleveland Browns football player Tommy O'Connell...

Evanson's Eric Friedler came from behind to defeat Hank Plister of California, 3-6, 2-6, 6-4, 6-4, 6-1 and win the International Under-21 Tennis Championship... Racing driver Mark Donohue was still on the danger list after undergoing brain surgery following an accident prior to Sunday's Austrian Grand Prix... "Tiny" Lund will be buried today. He was killed in a six-car pileup at the Alabama Speedway Sunday...

5 enter 'Hall'

Ralph Kiner, a seven-time National League home run king, and Billy Herman, both former Chicago Cubs, were two of five players inducted into the Baseball Hall of Fame Monday.

When Kiner stepped to the microphone at the Cooperstown, N. Y. ceremonies, he turned to a 74-year-old black man who never played in the major leagues and said, "Judy, you're a hard act to follow."

He was speaking to William (Judy) Johnson, a superstar in the old Negro Leagues before Jackie Robinson broke baseball's color line in 1947. It was no "act" when Johnson broke down and cried after receiving a standing ovation from the 7,500 assembled.

Also receiving honors were Earl Averill and Buckey Harris. Averill, 72, played from 1929 through 1941. Harris was the original "boy wonder" manager, starting at the age of 28.

Phillies tie Pirates for lead

Mike Schmidt hit a pair of homers and Dick Allen added a two-run shot Monday night, powering Philadelphia to a 6-3 victory over the Atlanta Braves that lifted the Phillies into a tie for first place with Pittsburgh in the National League East.

Schmidt, who trails only teammate Greg Luzinski in the race for the NL home run lead, hit his 27th of the season following a two-run smash by Allen in the second inning then connected for No. 23 to touch off a three-run seventh inning rally that snapped a 3-3 tie.

After Schmidt's second homer, the Phillies added two insurance runs in the seventh on singles by Garry Maddox and Tim McCarver, a sacrifice bunt and a two-run single by Dave Cash.

Elk Grove sets signup date for hockey group

The Elk Grove Amateur Hockey Assn. will hold its 1975 registration at the Lions Park Community Center on Saturday, Sept. 6, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The program is sponsored by the Elk Grove Park District and will provide novice, house and travel leagues for boys ages 6 to 18 years.

The novice program will be for boys from 6 to 10 years of age with no previous skating experience. Cost of the novice program will be $30.

The Association again will play its games at the Rolling Meadows Sports Complex. This year's program will have an A & B division and will include nine other surrounding park districts. The costs for the "B" House League will be $60 per boy.

This year's traveling teams will play in the Northern Illinois Hockey League. The travel teams will also make up the "A" Division league, teams at Rolling Meadows. Cost for the travel teams, which includes the house league, will be $120.

Fifty per cent of all fees will be required at registration. The Association will also sponsor a hockey equipment exchange and sale the same day. Good used equipment may be obtained at this sale at reasonable prices.

Ailshie shows 100, 440 speed

Jim Ailshie of 348 S. Wilshire in Arlington Heights earned a gold medal at the recent Jaycee Jamboree Champion Track Meet in Champaign.

The 11-year-old Miner Junior High School speedster originally qualified for the event with a 12.3 clocking in the 100-yard dash, but switched to the 440-yard dash in the Aurora Regional test.

The longer distance suited Ailshie who turned in a 66.3 winner in the 440 to buy a ticket to Champaign where he outdistanced all competitors with a nifty 65 flat in the state finals.

Campaign cash reform needed

When Daniel Walker hiked around Illinois in his successful campaign quest three years ago, he made the point incessantly that he was on the side of the little guy.

His campaign would be financed by the people, Walker told us, and he would not be beholden to politicians or special interests.

That approach apparently lasted until election day. Since then, Walker has been burdened with campaign debts the people failed to pay and now finds it easier to put the bite on state contractors and appointees to raise campaign funds.

The Better Government Assn.'s disclosure last week that eight engineering firms with $8 million in state contracts have given $11,000 to the Walker campaign since October should demolish whatever was left of the governor's Mr. Clean image.

The BGA said Walker's Illinois Democratic Fund solicited contributions from the firms, which received their state contracts without competitive bidding.

One company official who gave $2,000 to Walker denied that the gift had anything to do with his firm's $1.3 million in state contracts. "I like the governor of Illinois, and I guess that's all that is necessary," he said.

Walker's fund-raising experience provides a good lesson in the political reality of campaign financing. As a maverick challenger in 1972 with no power over state spending and the odds against him, Walker had difficulty raising money.

Since he took office, his control of millions in state contracts has assured him of what appears to be a steady flow of contributions from companies and individuals who hold or would like to hold some of those contracts.

The activities of state government are supposed to serve the people, as Walker might once have said, not to generate political contributions. The disclosures required under Illinois' new campaign law have shown that further reforms are required.

The General Assembly should start by banning political contributions from corporations. Spending limits are also needed for state campaigns. We also think the legislature should consider a law preventing officials of firms that hold state contracts from making contributions.

These measures would help continue the reform trend for which Gov. Walker campaigned so vigorously.

Two hats for Gerald Ford

President or politician? Both!

by HELEN THOMAS
UPI White House Reporter

VAIL, Colo. — When President Ford told Arkansas Republican leaders Sunday that between now and the election, "I intend to spend my time primarily being President," it had a familiar ring.

It was shades of Richard Nixon in the 1972 presidential campaign.

There is a fine line between out and out politicking by a president or a chief executive who is so much in demand and simply picking up invitations all over the country for public appearances.

The effect can be the same.

There is nothing to prevent a White House "advance" team from arriving on the scene ahead of time to ensure the president a large crowd at an airport or on a motorcade through town, preferably through downtown at the noon lunch hour.

The President is bound to command more attention than a new candidate.

So when Ford says, "I am going to maximize my time on the job," he is playing the best kind of politics in the view of veteran observers.

The best thing Ford has going for him is that he is President. In the 20th century only two incumbents — William Howard Taft and Herbert Hoover — were defeated.

When Ford met the Arkansas GOP, he talked about his energy and economic programs and only touched lightly on party politics. White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen told reporters afterwards "it was the most nonpolitical meeting I've ever attended."

Ford is presently on a working vacation but he also is managing to touch a lot of bases at the grassroots level in his travels around the country. He had a launching pad as the main speaker at the series of regional White House conferences on energy and economy last spring and there will be more such meetings in the days to come.

The White House also is launching a series of conferences on future goals for the nation which will spotlight Ford's presidency and give him ready-made travel opportunities.

In 1972, Nixon's political advisers told him he could wage his best campaign from the White House by just being President. He broadcast 10 campaign addresses on radio from the White House.

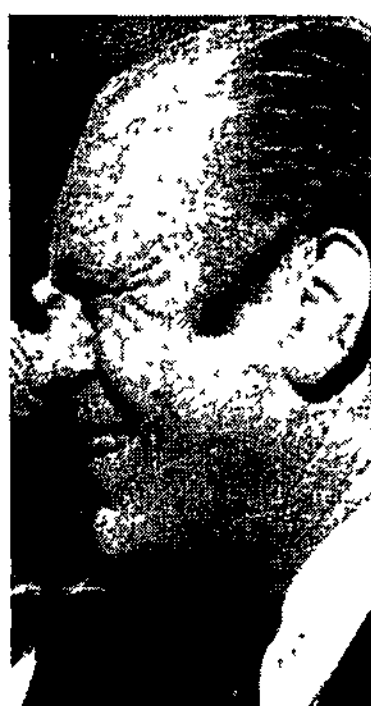

Also during that period he made most of his public appearances in his capacity as President.

In that way, he was able to maintain a statesmanlike profile against Sen. George McGovern, the Democratic opponent who was busy beating the bushes while Nixon said he was tending to White House business.

Ford likes to campaign. For 25 years he was one of the party's most loyal banquet circuit speakers who traveled far and wide to promote the candidacies of fellow Republicans.

Like his predecessors, crowds turn him on and he thoroughly enjoys being engulfed in their admiration. The question of whether they come out to see the President or Ford the candidate is unimportant, just so long as they come out.

Also playing into Ford's hands is the fact that the Democrats still have no front runner and the old truism that you can't beat somebody with nobody. Ford told wire service reporters last weekend he believes the majority of the Republicans are in the middle and he intends to hold that middle ground against more conservative elements in his party.

GERALD FORD

At the same time, Ford is taking no chances and the tenor of the statements from his campaign committee directed by Howard Callaway appeared to be intended to woo the conservatives.

From where he sits, Ford can have it both ways and probably will. He can run a campaign and be President at the same time and sometimes it will be hard to tell the difference.

These 4 were 'vital' to Watergate scandal

by DICK WEST
WASHINGTON — The first anniversary of former President Nixon's resignation last week produced one of the greatest outpourings of reflective, reminiscent and where-they-are-now interviews in the history of journalism.

Even so, not all of the individuals involved in the Watergate affair were contacted. Here are a few who were missed:

Maxwell Twitt — A former Watergate watchman who was off duty the night of the break-in. Twitt is now semi-retired and is writing a book about what happened on his night off.

"It was my bowling night," he recalled in an anniversary interview. "While the bugging burglary was in progress, I was rolling 143 on lane six. Otherwise, I might have been the one who called the cops."

Lobelia Nightshade — A former White House stenographer who erased 18 and a half pages of her shorthand notebook after taking dictation from a presidential aide who once attended a cocktail party at the Watergate.

Now a member of the Pentagon secretarial pool, Miss Nightshade is writing a book in which for the first time she gives her side of the erasing controversy.

"At the time everyone was saying the erasure couldn't have been accidental," she recalled in an anniversary interview. "That is not true."

"I had just sat down at my typewriter to transcribe my notes when the telephone rang. I had a piece of art gum in my hand and when I leaned over to answer the phone, I accidentally erased 18 and a half pages. It could have happened to anybody."

Lance Freestring — An ace investigative reporter who had an out-of-town assignment during the period of the Watergate coverup and didn't learn about it until the news was on television.

In an anniversary interview, Freestring refused to confirm rumors that the network anchorman from whom he first heard the news was Walter Cronkite.

He said the source of his information, referred to by Freestring only as "Deep CBS," would be identified in a book he is writing about Watergate.

Stanley Vestspot — A former official of the Nixon re-election committee whose job was to solicit campaign contributions from trombone players.

Now in federal prison, where he is serving time for plagiarism, Vestspot still denies that the book he wrote about his role in the Watergate coverup was copied from a book by Jeb Stuart Magruder.

He said charges that he was only a minor functionary who innocently carried out orders from higher-ups had kept his book off the best-seller lists and caused it to be passed up by the book clubs.

"I was as deeply involved in perjury and obstruction of justice as any other committee official and I'm entitled to royalties from it," Vestspot said in an anniversary interview.

'A matter of theology'

After reading your article on the controversy among the Missouri Synod Lutherans, it seems to me you presented only one side of the issue. Though I am an outsider to their problems, these same issues have been faced in every denomination, so I think I can have a pretty good understanding of the key points.

What you have are two groups who see the issues very differently. On the one side are the moderates (these used to be called liberal, but moderate is a much nicer term). They see the issue as freedom of conscience. On the other side are the conservatives (these used to be called fundamentalists, but conservative is a much nicer term). They see the issue as the integrity of Scripture.

The moderates, in the name of freedom of conscience, are willing to let the conservatives preach and teach their view of literal interpretation of an error-free Bible. They can co-exist. It's only a fable anyway, and it costs them nothing to live with it.

The conservatives, in the name of the integrity of Scripture, cannot allow the moderates to preach and teach that the Bible contains errors. It will cost them everything if they do. They lose their very foundation.

It is a welcome change to see the conservatives winning some of these battles that in most denominations the liberals have won. The normal result is schism. The conservatives will make a mistake if they try to prevent it. They will find themselves on the losing side in the future.

Ruling on Keane upheld by court

A three-judge U.S. Court of Appeals panel Monday upheld the conviction of former Chicago Ald. Thomas F. Keane on conspiracy and 14 counts of mail fraud.

The court reversed Keane's conviction on three other mail fraud charges, saying the government failed to establish sufficient evidence of those charges.

Keane, 60, a top aide to Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley, was found guilty Oct. 9 of using information obtained as a city official to profit on the purchase and resale of tax delinquent property. He has been sentenced to five years in prison, but is expected to remain free pending an appeal of the appeals court ruling.

Phosphate ban takes effect

A ban on phosphate detergents goes into effect in Chicago today and city officials say they will ticket and fine merchants who keep the products on the shelves.

Stores can be fined $100 to $300 for the first violation and $300 to $500 for additional violations.

Chicago is the first major U.S. city to ban phosphate detergents on environmental grounds.

Milk must supplement vegetarian diet

My girls became vegetarians a year ago. They were 13 and 11 years old. Both are very active, make average grades in school and haven't slowed down at all. I must confess that although I am worried about their being veggie, as they call it, I can't find a single argument against their being veggie. They are both in good health, and love vegetables, fruits, cheeses of all kinds, eggs, and I keep plenty in the house.

The feel strongly about this. A major factor in their decision not to eat ment is TV. The shows that make pet cows, pigs, chickens and other animals almost human and their love of animals makes them deplore the slaughter of animals. They think if they don't eat meat they are not contributing to the slaughter of animals.

I'm not sure why I'm so worried or why I wish they would go back to being meat eaters. I would like your unbiased professional opinion.

It is hard to give up beliefs one was raised with. For years we have been told that eating meat was essential to good health. Meat is excellent food, but you can certainly live a healthy life without it. To do so, however, you must get an adequate amount of the right protein in your diet. Failure to have all the essential amino acids in sufficient quantity can lead to stunted growth and poor development. The growth base demands more protein than some other years.

Particularly for the growing years I like to see vegetarians include plenty of milk or its equivalent in the diet. To avoid too much saturated fat this can be fortified skim milk or even non-fat, dry milk powder used in cooking.

A vegetarian can use more eggs than those who are heavy meat eaters, because the vegetarian diet otherwise is usually low in cholesterol. Plants and their products contain no cholesterol. Even so I am not encouraging a large consumption of egg yolks (the whites are fine), because many young people have high cholesterol levels according to recent surveys.

Most cheese, except the cottage or farmer cheese is very high in fat (about 80 per cent of its calories are fat), and about half of the fat is saturated fat. I do think that low fat cottage cheese is excellent for both protein and calcium. The milk, cottage cheese and mature beans, if used in sufficient quantity, will provide adequate protein.

Vegetarians tend, as a group, to live longer than others in our modern society. Heart attacks and strokes may occur an average of 10 years later. Most vegetarians are health-conscious and weigh less, don't tend to smoke or have other bad habits. All of this helps in staying younger longer in good health. A recent study from Harvard Medical School showed that groups eating mostly a vegetarian diet tended to have significantly lower blood pressure.

Lindberg and Circuit Court Judge George Unversatt of DuPage County were mentioned as possible replacements for Davis. Davis served on the high court for nine years, including two years as chief justice.

Officials subject to suits

An Illinois appeals court has ruled that any citizen may sue a public official who uses his office to obtain money improperly.

The case involved nine legislators who allegedly purchased stock in racing associations at bargain prices and used their influence to get good racing dates for the associations. Only one of the legislators named in the suit, State Rep. Clyde Chouteau, D-Anne, is still serving in the legislature.

The attorney who argued the case said the decision could open the door for taxpayers to sue for recovery of money from any local, county or state official who takes money in a conflict-of-interest situation.

Budget cuts 3.8%: official

State Comptroller George Lindberg said Monday the budget cuts made by the Illinois General Assembly and Gov. Daniel Walker total only a 3.8 per cent reduction in spending, compared with the governor's announced goal of 6 per cent.

Lindberg said Walker should announce a revised spending plan for the state for the fiscal year which began July 1. He said, "The governor has not yet publicly revealed a spending plan for fiscal 1976. In a nutshell, only reduced spending, not the advertising of appropriations cuts, will avert a fiscal disaster in the next 12-month period."

Sanibel, Captiva islands—a shell collector's delight

by LOIS MONTGOMERY
(Special to the Herald)

Anchored in the warm waters of the Gulf of Mexico just three miles off the west coast of Florida is a shell collector's dream: Sanibel and Captiva islands.

For centuries after their discovery by the Spanish in 1521, the islands looked as if time had passed them by.

But that was yesterday. Progress has come to Sanibel and Captiva and its presence still meets with mixed emotions.

Once semi-isolated from Florida, except for daily mail boat deliveries, the islands have achieved a popularity rivaling the appeal of other Florida destinations.

IN JUST five short years, the number of visitors and residents has grown considerably and development has shifted the sands of Sanibel.

Island development has not gone unchecked, however. Ever protective of their interests, long-time residents and local authorities keep a running tab on progress to ensure the basic serenity of the environment remains undisturbed.

Much of the island is uninhabited, due largely to efforts by J. N. "Ding" Darling, a cartoonist who turned his talents toward conservation and worked diligently to establish a wildlife refuge. The evidence of his success is the preserve bearing his name, which now occupies more than 5,000 acres of Sanibel.

About 250 species of birds live in the refuge, ranging from the common wren to the rare and exotic roseate spoonbill.

Sanibel's shelling beaches are its claim to fame, and that claim goes unchallenged in the Western Hemisphere. The Gulf tides often obscure the beaches with thousands of shells.

ALTHOUGH SHELLS are plentiful, the beaches are seldom uncombed. Shell collecting is a full-time avocation for many island visitors and the competition is stiff for rare and perfect specimens.

For the serious shell collector, it's usually necessary to spend several days on the beaches collecting just after low tide. Tide charts are available at many locations.

Sanibel and Captiva are just 15 miles from Fort Myers. Those staying in the coastal city find the islands provide a pleasant change of pace.

The Gulf-side beaches extend from the southern tip of Sanibel in an almost unbroken line northward along Captiva's shore. Captiva, however, is nearly all privately owned. The island does have a county park and a resort complex, The South Seas Plantation, which occupies the northern tip.

The islands are connected to the mainland by a causeway to Sanibel's eastern shore. The $3 toll, once thought to be a deterrent to overcrowding the islands, proved to be an even stronger draw. Visitors want to see just what their $3 will get them.

WHAT VISITORS do get on the 14-mile-long Sanibel still is unmatched in scenery, charm and historical mystique.

First called Santa Isabella, no doubt in honor of the Queen of Spain, the name was corrupted to Sanibel through years of use.

The island's village remains the center of activity despite the causeway. The Artisan Shop displays the creativity of local artists and craftsmen. Bailey's General Store has changed little but its building since 1899.

Sanibel also boasts a lighthouse at Point Ybel and the Bailey Bird Sanctuary, a refuge for migratory ducks.

Getting around Sanibel is a simple matter. Touring by car is less popular with visitors than walking or biking.

The one area in which a car is a necessity is in the Darling refuge. The management area has a planned five-mile drive, which allows travelers to explore on their own time schedule. A booklet obtained at the entrance of the drive is numbered according to sites and is helpful in explaining the refuge's residents.

ACCOMMODATIONS on the islands range from simple housekeeping cottages to air-conditioned motel efficiencies and several American-plan hotels. Many places provide facilities for the care and cleaning of the day's shell harvest. Sports clothes and bare feet are still the dress of the day.

Rates change from $14 per person for a double up to $37 per person for an apartment.

A network of Florida highways makes Sanibel accessible from most other vacation areas. From Tampa it is 140 miles on U.S. Rte. 301 south to U.S. Rte. 41. Those in Orlando can travel 170 miles on I-4 west to U.S.

Rte. 27 south to U.S. Rte. 17. From Miami it is 165 miles on U.S. Rte. 41 (the Tamiami Trail) west across the Everglades to Fort Myers. The causeway to Sanibel is S-867.

Research released

Marijuana use linked to lower sperm count

Smoking marijuana leads to infertility and probably lessens immunity to disease, according to research recently completed at New York's Columbia University and released in Helsinki at the International Pharmacology Conference.

The research contradicts the recently completed U.S. government sponsored "Jamaica Study" which said large amounts of marijuana had no adverse effect on man except possibly reducing delivery of oxygen to tissues by the bloodstream.

In an interview with United Press International, Dr. Gabriel G. Nahas of the Columbia University College of Physicians and Surgeons said the study conducted on five young men showed "their ability to defend themselves against disease is decreased and their fertility is impaired."

Nahas, who programmed the study, said more research was needed to prove further the disease conclusions, but he said there was no doubt marijuana decreased fertility.

The Columbia study, conducted between April and June, placed five men averaging 21 years of age in a controlled environment for two months.

For 29 days, they were allowed to smoke as much marijuana as they wished. The record was 31 cigarettes by a subject in one day.

THE MOST ONE man smoked in the test period was 321 marijuana cigarettes, and the least was 151 cigarettes. The subjects began with just a couple of cigarettes as the study began and the amount was eventually increased to the desired amount.

Nahas said the sperm count for the man who smoked 321 cigarettes dropped 75 per cent and the sperm count for the man who smoked 151 cigarettes dropped 30 per cent.

The average drop in sperm count was 57 per cent. After a prolonged absence from marijuana the sperm count returned to normal.

Nahas said one fear was the effect would be even worse in women, but similar tests on women could not be carried out since they are forbidden by law.

"This was the first time we have taken young men — potent men — have them smoke as much as they want for one month and then see what happened. They had nothing left," Nahas said.

NAHAS ESTIMATED a person could smoke one marijuana cigarette a week with no side effects, but if that increased to two or three a week over a period of years there could be side effects.

He said the results refuted the Jamaica study, sponsored by the Center for Studies of Narcotic and Drug Abuse of the National Institute of Mental Health. Jamaicans are thought to smoke about 10-25 times more marijuana than is common in the United States.

There is a correct way to seal jelly

Dear Dorothy: I've heard there's a way to seal jelly with paraffin so that it doesn't shrink and pull away. Do you know of it? — Helen Rothm.

Sure. Pour on a thin layer of paraffin, rotating the jar so that the top and sides are sealed simultaneously. After this layer hardens, pour on another thin layer. While I've not done it myself, I've watched it done by experts and they assured me that this way the paraffin never shrinks.

Dear Dorothy: Breakfasting in bed, I spilled black coffee on my yellow blanket. Haven't done anything to the stain and am waiting to hear from you. Hope you can help. — Ginny Seansgood.

The old-fashioned way of rinsing a coffee stain instantly with cold water would have removed it right away.

The homeline by Dorothy Ritz

Now we have the enzyme presoaks. Make a solution with the hottest water safe for the type of blanket you have. If you wish, you can substitute an oxygen bleach solution. Then launder.

Dear Dorothy: This is the time of year when many people receive fresh fish from adventurous friends and so this tip is in order. We've always broiled our fish, so when a friend brought us half of a large blue, we broiled it, too. By the time it was ready, the top was burned to a crisp. We'd learned, too late, that a big fish calls for baking, not broiling. Hope it helps others. — Helga Rasmussen.

Dear Dorothy: I have candle drippings on the carpet and my clip file on your hints says to use a white blotter. But blotters seem out of style. Anything else I can use? — Murray Pender.

White paper toweling works well. So do paper napkins and even cleansing tissues — anything absorbent that will take in the grease.

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Paddock Publications, Suburban Living, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.

HOSPITALS aren't so bad when you have something fun to do. Scott Davis, Mount Prospect, tries out one of the "Jay and Johnny at the Hospital" coloring books donated to Northwest Community Hospital by Sigma Sigma sorority. Gail Brown, president of the group, said the purpose of the 25-page books is to prepare sick children for their hospital stay. The books are distributed through the pre-admission testing program for pediatrics surgical candidates.

Most home accidents avoidable

Most home accidents are not accidents in the strict sense of the word. They are avoidable mishaps with a variety of causes, including environmental carelessness, stress and too much noise.

A study of home accidents, which kill 30,000 Americans a year and injure or disable thousands more, turned up some surprising explanations.

One case cited by Rodger Dean Duncan in an article in Marriage & Family Living, a publication of St. Meinrad (Ind.) Abbey, involved 200 railroad company employees whose accident rate was much higher than that of other plant employees. A psychologist's report on the situation was being printed when the departmental superintendent was transferred. A sharp decrease in accidents followed in his old department and a sharp increase in his new section.

Duncan refutes the long-held theory about children whose accident rate is high. They are not clumsy, awkward, dull or neurotic, he wrote, but they tend to be physically precocious, while average in other ways.

He cited cases of 4-year-olds who were hurt while riding two-wheel bicycles. Most children that young lack the skills and maturity to ride safely, he added.

DUNCAN'S HOME accident checklist suggests:

Place beds within easy reach of a lamp or light switch so you won't trip over furniture if you get up during the night.

Be sure there is an easy-to-use emergency exit, such as an unblocked window, for quick escape from your bedroom in case of fire.

If you hang pictures or other articles on the wall above your bed, attach them firmly to the wall so they cannot fall on you while you sleep.

Sleep with your bedroom door closed. This provides some protection against smoke and poisonous gases if a fire should break out.

Never use more than one kind of cleaners at a time in bath, kitchen or elsewhere. Mixed together, some produce highly toxic gases that can be fatal when inhaled.

Avoid using power tools when your hands are perspiring; even that little bit of dampness can cause a shock.

Ask Andy

Squid ahead of octopus by 2 arms

Andy sends a complete 20-volume set of the Merit Students Encyclopedia to Kathy Williams, age 14, of Lyons, Kan., for her question:

NOW CAN WE TELL A SQUID FROM AN OCTOPUS?

This is no big problem for those of us who can count to eight and add two. The numbers refer to arms, or tentacles. Words that contain the letters "octo" are related to number eight. Hence, the octopus has eight arms, which leaves the squid with 10. However, there are other basic differences between these two cousins.

Both of these blue-blooded mollusks belong to the seas. The squid is a fast, restless traveler, usually in the company of countless friends and relatives. Together, a shoal of squids looks somewhat like a flock of speeding arrows. They depend on speed and numbers to escape sharks and other hungry enemies.

The octopus is a timid character who prefers a quiet, rather lonely life. Instead of fleeing in panic, he retreats to a well-hidden lair on the rocky sea bed. He is the brainiest of the backboneless animals and a master of clever disguises. Unlike the clams, snails and other mollusks, neither the squid nor the octopus has an outer shell. The squid may have a fragment of shell inside his soft, boneless body; the octopus does not.

In both cases, the head and body are joined and held in shape by a sack of tough tissue called the mantle. The baggy octopus has a circle of eight twining tentacles, usually connected with flaps of skin to form a sort of umbrella. The barrel-shaped squid is streamlined, with a pair of flat fins at his tail end. His head end is circled with eight medium-length tentacles — plus a pair of extra-tough longer ones, making 10.

Both the squid and the octopus swim by jet propulsion. Water is sucked in the front end and squirted out at the rear. Hence they swim backward, with tentacles trailing behind. Both have remarkable skins that enable them to change through a range of colors and combinations, including spots and blotches. Both have ink sacs and becloud the waters to bewilder their prey and confuse their enemies.

The 150 species of octopus and the 350 species of squid are so much alike that they are listed in the same class and order. However, the basic differences make it necessary to classify them in different family groups.

Andy sends a 7-volume set of the Chronicles of Narnia to Tiger Gallimore, age 14, of Huntington Beach, Calif., for his question:

WHAT ARE EPIPHYTES?

When a scientist sees the letters "phyto" in a word, he knows that it has something to do with plants. The epiphytes are air plants. This seems odd because all plants need to take both oxygen and carbon dioxide from the air. However, most plants have roots that take moisture and food chemicals from the soil. The epiphytes do not. These so-called air plants take almost everything they need from the air.

They need plenty of air space, but they do not have to set down roots on the crowded forest floor. Many of them perch aloft on the boughs of tall trees, others perch on telephone poles and even high cliffs. There among the circulating breezes they absorb moisture, oxygen and carbon dioxide from the air — and use the energy of sunlight to grow their greenery. Some of the epiphytes are gorgeous orchids, others are shy little lichens. One of the best-known epiphytes of the Southeastern states is the Spanish moss that dangles from many roadside trees.

East's bad preempt has terrible fallout

Sometimes it doesn't pay to preempt. East was having a very good game in a match-point duplicate. Everything was going well and he decided to preempt with the East hand.

It is the sort of preempt we don't recommend. He is four tricks short of his bid, but that didn't cost him this time.

What did cost him was that South was allergic to preempts and made a very unsound double. After two rounds of bidding South found himself

Win at bridge

by Oswald and Jim Jacoby

In a very bad grand-slam contract since North also hated to be shut out.

South won the spade lead in dummy, entered his hand with a heart and led the queen of clubs. West's king fell to South's ace.

South thought a long time. He finally entered his hand with the second high heart, led a club, finessed against West's 10 and had taken care of the trump suit. After that it was a simple matter to finesse against the king of diamonds and wind up with his grand slam.

It was a top score to end all top scores. No one else either bid or made seven.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE

Here's how to work it:
A X Y D L B A A X
is L O N G F E A W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

400,000 volunteers in two years. But the big news is the kind of people coming in.

Today's Army is getting a unique view of today's young people.

In the last two years without the draft, over 400,000 young Americans have chosen to serve in the Army.

As a result, the Army today stands at full authorized strength and is, in fact, ahead of schedule for fielding 16 ready divisions.

Not only are the numbers impressive, but so are the people. 66% of them have completed high school. 14,000 have some college behind them. And they'll be able to continue their educations while in the Army.

According to commanders in the field, today's young volunteers are making terrific soldiers. They're looking for personal challenge, and getting it. They're at an age where they want to test themselves, and they're doing it. In return for responsibility, opportunity and maturity, they're giving 100% to the job of soldiering.

It's a good situation, and getting better.

And perhaps not so surprising when you consider what today's Army has to offer:

We start a young soldier at $344.10 a month, with a raise to $383.40 in just four months.

For those who qualify, there are over 200 specific job-training courses to choose from. Most of these courses develop skills that can be used in civilian life.

The opportunities to continue a formal education are varied and extensive. We have soldiers who go on to complete high school. Soldiers who start and finish college. And some who even acquire advanced degrees.

Today, the Army's educational opportunities have been expanded with the introduction of "Project Ahead" — a program that involves over 1200 colleges and universities and enables a young person to enlist in the Army and start college at the same time. And all with the Army paying up to 75% of the tuition costs.

In addition to salary, there are the traditional benefits of food, clothing, housing, medical and dental care, and 30 days' paid vacation each year. All of which allow the more enterprising to build a savings account.

And there is the opportunity for travel. Not only throughout the continental United States, but to Europe, Hawaii, Korea and other assignments around the world.

The Army offer reads well, but it doesn't come easy. It takes intelligence, courage, discipline, teamwork, pride in self and love of country. It says a lot for America that, in just two years, 400,000 young people have volunteered to serve in its Army.

Pay will buy less: bank survey

North and Northwest suburban residents questioned in a survey released Monday expect their paychecks to buy less in the next year despite a general optimism about the economy.

The survey, conducted by Continental Bank of Chicago, found that 57 per cent of those in this area questioned expect business conditions to improve during the next year.

However, only 15 per cent said their families were better off financially than they were at this time last year.

And 71 per cent said they do not get their money's worth from consumer products, while 62 per cent said the quality of products is worse than it was two years ago.

BASED ON RESPONSES from households throughout the Chicago area, the bank said its index of consumer confidence jumped 12 points, for the third consecutive quarterly gain.

The survey, conducted last month, questioned 750 households in the Chicago area. Responses were broken down into five categories: Chicago, North and Northwest suburbs, west suburbs, south suburbs and area-wide.

The 15 per cent of North and Northwest suburbanites who said they were better off than last year represented the lowest such response of any group.

In Chicago, 21 per cent said they were better off financially. The response was 19 per cent in the west suburbs and 22 per cent in the south suburbs.

RESPONDENTS in every area replied "better" more often than they had during the previous survey in April when asked their opinion about business conditions in the Chicago area.

In the North and Northwest suburbs, that sentiment gained 13 percentage points. In the south suburbs it was up 10 per cent and in the west suburbs 7 per cent.

When asked what they believe will happen to business conditions a year from now, 52 per cent of all respondents predicted improvement, up substantially from the 41 per cent response in April and 24 per cent level in July 1974.

North and Northwest suburbanites seemed most optimistic, with 57 per cent predicting improvement in a year. The figures were 56 per cent for the west suburbs, 37 per cent for the south suburbs and 54 per cent for Chicago.

ONLY 30 PER CENT said they believe they are getting their money's worth from products they purchase, with 66 per cent answering "no." Responses in the suburbs were more negative on this point, with 60 per cent of city residents answering "no" versus 72 per cent of suburbanites.

Residents of the North and Northwest suburbs were also most critical of the quality of service. Thirty-eight per cent found it worse than it was two years ago, while only 30 per cent of all respondents gave that reply.

Only half replied "yes" when asked if they were getting their money's worth from services they purchase. The "yes" response was given by 56 per cent of Chicagoans, 61 per cent of west suburbanites and 59 per cent of residents of the south suburbs.

Residents of the North and Northwest suburbs also indicated they complain more frequently about poor-quality service. But they are also more likely than those in other areas to hire someone to perform a service than to do it themselves, the survey found.

'RTA fund policy gypping suburbs'

by STEVE FORSYTH

Suburban spokesmen Monday protested what they called "inequitable funding" from the Regional Transportation Authority and asked the federal government to investigate RTA funding practices.

The RTA drew criticism during a public hearing on a $50.5 million federal grant application that would help pay operating deficits in fiscal year 1976, which started July 1.

Lola Levey, staff assistant for the North Suburban Mass Transit District, suggested that the Urban Mass Transportation Administration investigate the fairness of the proposed distribution of funds by the RTA.

"The NORTRAN board feels that the present RTA interim funding policy for suburban bus service is arbitrary, inequitable, discriminatory and will result in a decline in suburban bus service and patronage," she said.

AN AIDE TO U.S. Rep. Abner J. Mikva, D-10th, read a statement in which Mikva warned, "If the RTA hopes to acquire additional federal funds, it and other agencies throughout the country are going to have to show that they can use the funds that are available now in the most equitable and efficient manner."

Mikva said the RTA's proposed interim policy of fully funding only bus systems that pay for 65 per cent of their own costs does not meet the criterion of fairness.

NORTRAN has become the center of the funding issue because it is the first carrier to receive a grant in fiscal 1976. NORTRAN has been in financial trouble and needed a grant to meet payroll this month, but the system was not given full deficit financing because it only pays for 56 per cent of its costs.

Joseph DiJohn, NORTRAN executive director, said the district can qualify for more RTA money if it drops some minimal routes, but it would have to collect the remainder of its estimated $500,000 deficit from the 21 communities in the district.

DiJohn read several letters Monday from mayors in the district who are opposed to contributing local money when RTA taxes are being used to support other systems such as the Chicago Transit Authority.

DES PLAINE'S Mayor Herbert Behr sent a letter questioning the distribution of funds to the suburbs, and Niles Mayor Nicholas Blase went on record as opposing the RTA grant application. "In suburban areas, we must build routes, not cut them," Blase said.

Blase said the RTA discriminates by withholding funds from the suburbs while funding the CTA 100 per cent.

Village Pres. Virginia Hayter, Hoffman Estates, said her village cannot go ahead with transportation plans, even though a study has been completed, because there has been no definite indication of what the RTA will support.

Mrs. Hayter said Hoffman Estates needs public transit because it is five miles from each of the two commuter railroads serving the west and Northwest suburbs.

ON THE ISSUE of federal funding, Mrs. Hayter said her board is not interested in driving the federal government further into debt. She said Hoffman Estates has no position on the grant application "unless the RTA has a long-term commitment to help bring the federal budget back into balance."

She added, "I'm not so sure the black community realizes what you are doing — you're creating a problem of movement to and from the suburbs," she said.

Comments from Monday's public hearing will be sent to UMTA for review before the government takes action on the RTA grant application.

25 cents per $100 assessed valuation

Schools OK Sept. 27 tax hike referendum

by JUDY JOBBITT

A Sept. 27 referendum will be held in Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 to seek a 25-cent per $100 assessed valuation education-tax-rate increase.

The board of education Monday approved setting the 25-cent tax referendum despite an administration request for a 40-cent per $100 assessed valuation tax rate increase.

"I oppose a 40-cent increase," said Board Pres. Judith Zanca. "I'd like to recommend a 25-cent increase — 20 cents for the deficit resulting from our decreased state aid and 5 cents for inflation and other financial problems."

Supl. Roger Bardwell had recommended the higher tax-rate increase saying only 15 cents would be used initially. The remainder of the increase would have been implemented in conjunction with the required tax rate reduction in High School Dist. 214.

BOARD MEMBER Emil Bahmaier said he could not seek a 40-cent increase, because "our track record as a board chopping back on the budget has not been the greatest."

"We must show the voters that we are not only asking for more money, but are willing to take measures to pull ourselves out" of a deficit, said Bahmaier.

Mrs. Zanca said she opposed the 40-cent increase, because "once you give the educators the money, you lose control."

"I just don't feel I could justify any more than 25 cents," said Mrs. Zanca.

The district is projecting a $167 million deficit in the education and building funds for the 1975-76 school year. Surplus funds from last year and money from the working cash fund will make up for the deficit this year. However, neither fund includes salary increases this year which would add to the projected deficit.

The district also is receiving $2.1 million less from state aid this year, partly because of declining enrollment. The district also is not receiving the maximum state aid allowed, because its tax rate is below the required $1.95 per $100 assessed valuation level.

A tax increase of 15 cents per $100 assessed valuation would bring the district up to the level required by the state to receive full state aid.

JOSEPH STECKER, a Dist. 59 resident and finance committee member, said he doesn't "see how the board can ask for one single penny before I see some cutting of the budget." He presented the board with recommendations for cutting about $1 million from this year's budget.

Mrs. Zanca said the budget committee is reviewing the budget for possible cuts. Updated figures from the administration show education budget cuts of $247,644, which includes $170,792 for the Northwest Suburban Special Education deaf education program. Dist. 59 had proposed moving the deaf education program from Arlington Heights Dist. 25 to Dist. 59. The NSSEO board has decided to leave the program at its current location in Dist. 25.

Dist. 63 sign up #### for new students

Families who have moved into East Maine Dist. 63 are asked to register their children for school before the first day of school Sept. 3.

Registration will be at all schools from 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m., starting Wednesday. Information about which school a child should attend can be obtained by calling the district office at 967-1828.

4 names submitted for teacher of year

Four teachers from River Trails Dist. 26's River Trails Junior High School have been nominated for the Outstanding Secondary Educators of the Year award.

Charlotte C. Mass, Morton Grove; Marianne Jezowski, Arlington Heights; Rochelle Candiolo, Glenview, and Burnett Lewis Jr., Buffalo Grove, are eligible for $500 grants and inclusion in the annual awards volume "Outstanding Secondary Educators of America."

Selections are made by Outstanding Secondary Educators of America, a division of Fuller & Dees, Washington, D.C. Award winners will be announced in late summer.

Housing starts highest in year

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Housing starts increased by 12.7 per cent in July to the highest level in a year, the Commerce Department reported Monday.

Building permits, which signal still more new construction, increased also but at a more modest rate of 6 per cent from June, the department said. Permits were issued at an annual adjusted rate of 1.007 million units.

The number of houses under construction in July was estimated at 1.238 million compared with a revised June rate of 1.088 million. It was the highest level since July 1974 when new units under construction totaled 1.314 million.

Housing Secretary Carla Hills said the July figures were "encouraging, particularly with regard to multifamily starts. This trend seems to indicate a continued recovery for the housing industry."

Although new home construction affects a relatively small percentage of the population at any given time, the industry's health is a significant measure of the economy as a whole.

In four major recessions since the Great Depression, housing construction

City hikes truck, liquor licenses, trash pickup fees

The Des Plaines City Council Monday night voted to increase garbage pickup fees, vehicle licenses for large trucks and liquor licenses.

The increases were recommended by the city finance committee. Ald. Charles J. Bolek, 3rd, a committee chairman, said the increases will bring in more than $180,000 each year.

By an 11-to-5 vote, the council raised garbage fees from $2 to $3 a month, effective Jan. 1, 1976. Aldermen Thomas J. Koplos, 1st, Robert D. Sullivan, 2nd; Daniel Kisslinger, 4th; Robert M. Kraves, 6th, and Carmen J. Sarlo, 8th, voted against the increases. Bolek said the action will increase city revenue by $160,000 to $170,000.

KOPLOS SAID he favored an increase in garbage pickup fees, but felt $1 a month was too large an increase. Bolek said even with the increase, however, the city will have about a $90,000 deficit in the garbage fund.

The city council voted unanimously to increase the annual fee for liquor licenses from $1,000 to $1,200. The initial $2,500 fee for liquor licenses will remain unchanged.

The city council also voted 11-to-5 to levy a $300 annual fee on tavern owners who sell package goods. Bolek said the fee will bring in $3,300 a year. Aldermen George F. Olen, 2nd; Patrick Brannigan, 4th; Gerald J. Meyer, 7th; Sullivan and Sarlo voted against the measure.

SULLIVAN AND Brannigan said they opposed the $300 fee, because it would place a hardship on small tavern owners who sell only a small amount of package goods.

"For the $3,300 the city would receive, I feel it would place a great hardship on those that would have to pay," Sullivan said.

Finally, by a unanimous vote, the city council approved a $5 increase in truck license in Class C and above. The aldermen also voted to increase vehicle license transfer fees from 50 cents to $2.

City officials have decided to leave the cost of auto and motorcycle licenses at $12 in 1976. Earlier, the finance committee recommended the licenses be increased to $14 a year.

CITY COMPTROLLER Duane L. Bilek has projected the city will need about $800,000 to $900,000 in additional revenue next year to meet rising costs and balance the city budget. The city budget this year is about $14 million.

The comptroller said increasing city fees and licenses only will bring in a fraction of the needed revenue, and the property taxes, sales tax and state income tax will have to bring in the additional money.

In addition to raising city fees and licenses, officials are considering levying a utility tax on telephone, electric and natural gas bills.

Football tea slated Sept. 3

The women's auxiliary of the Mount Prospect Midget Football Assn. is sponsoring a get-acquainted tea for all coaches' wives and all cheerleading mothers.

The tea will begin at 8 p.m. Sept. 3 at the Mount Prospect Community Center, 600 S. See Gwun Ave., Mount Prospect. Cheerleading mothers also will be given uniforms at the tea.

Traffic on Van Buren subject for meeting

Residents of a two-block section of Van Buren Avenue in Des Plaines will meet with Ald. George Olen, 2nd, Wednesday to discuss what steps the city can take to control traffic in their neighborhood.

Olen said Monday he has received a petition from residents in the 1600 and 1700 blocks of Van Buren, complaining of traffic problems in their area.

He explained motorists apparently are using Van Buren between River Road and White Street to bypass traffic congestion on Algonquin Road.

Olen said some of the residents have asked that the speed limit be reduced or the street be made one-way in an effort to reduce traffic.

BUT OLEN added that while about 25 residents have asked for additional controls, another 13 residents from the area have called for no more control.

"I want to get all of these residents together to talk about what can be done in the area," Olen said. The public hearing is scheduled to begin at 7:30 p.m. in the city council chambers at the Civic Center.

Olen said he believes the public hearing approach, which allows residents to voice their opinions, is the best way to handle the problem.

He added he is not sure what the city might be able to do to solve the problem, noting if traffic was controlled on Van Buren, motorists would probably drive one block further south to Whitcomb Avenue in order to avoid Algonquin Road.

"WE HAVE to think about those possible problems also," Olen said.

Olen said Ald. Richard Ward, 8th, chairman of the city council's streets and traffic committee, will attend the session.

Olen is hopeful the streets and traffic committee will formulate recommendations from residents' suggestions.

'Hard for party not to support incumbent'

'Primary unlikely for Walker'

Despite considerable saber rattling, Illinois Gov. Daniel Walker may not have to face a 1978 primary fight with Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley's forces.

The prediction was made by U.S. Rep. Abner J. Mikva, D-10th, who said he probably would support Walker if the governor seeks reelection next year.

"He is the governor of my party, and I would support him in the general election, and I would have to say that I would lean very heavily towards him in any primary," the congressman added.

He reasoned that despite the run-ins Walker has had with the Daley Democratic organization there probably would not be a major primary fight.

"It would be very hard for the party not to support the incumbent for reelection," Mikva said. He added he hopes Walker does not try to field a slate of candidates to run against officials like Lt. Gov. Neil Hartigan, a strong Daley supporter.

Mikva said he could support Walker, because the governor has developed a good record during his term in office.

"He has assembled one of the best health teams, made great efforts to improve environmental conditions and made strong effort to hold the line on tax increases," Mikva said.

The congressman said he is not surprised by recent polls which show Walker has lost some support. He also noted Walker will have a hard campaign against former U.S. Atty. James Thompson, who is seeking the Republican nomination for the governor's race.

On the national scene, Mikva said he still has no clear favorite for the Democratic presidential nomination, but he continued to point to U.S. Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., as a good candidate.

"If the party can pull itself together, I think there is a good chance we can win the White House in 1976," Mikva said, adding that President Gerald R. Ford's popularity is largely due to public comparisons with Richard Nixon rather than any image which Ford has created for himself.

"When you compare the two, President Ford comes out looking pretty good," he added.

'Rules of the Road' review offered for senior citizens

Elk Grove Township will offer a Rules of the Road review program for senior citizens who face driver's license renewal within the next month.

There is no charge for the three-session course.

Includes a review of the Rules of the Road, sign interpretation, general review of safety rules and a test similar to the one given by the state for license renewal.

The classes will be at 9 a.m. Sept. 3, 10 and 17. The sessions last two to three hours and are conducted by instructors who are senior citizens and have been specially trained by the Secretary of State's office staff.

According to Nita Samm, township special projects coordinator, the course is particularly beneficial to senior citizens, since it is geared especially to the problems they may encounter during their renewal test.

At the last session, the students are given a test that closely simulates the one they actually will take to renew their license, and since the tests are graded, drivers are able to see where more study is needed.

Senior citizens interested in the classes may contact Mrs. Stamm at the township hall, 437-0300, for registration or further information including transportation to the classes.

From the library

"The Four Seasons," a mosaic created for and given to the people of Chicago by Marc Chagall, will be the subject of a 30-minute film to be shown at the Des Plaines Public Library, 841 Graceland Ave., Wednesday and Thursday at 3 p.m.

Chagall's design is rendered from hundreds of tons of colored stone and glass on a wall 14 feet high by 70 feet long and 10 feet wide. The mosaic is in the First National Bank of Chicago Plaza.

"Shifting Gears," by the O'Neills will be discussed at Wednesday's meeting of the Adult Book Discussion Group. "The Gift," a 30-minute film about the Chagall mosaic will be shown at 7 p.m. before the meeting.

Friday's free film show will feature four shorts, beginning at 2 p.m. "Bullpen," baseball; "In the Streets of Old Quebec," historic Quebec City; "The Alm - Less Frame," diet and exercise, and "Gold Filled," how jewelry is made.

Des Plaines Art Guild members, Halcyon Peters and Lorraine Wilkens, are showing their artwork at the library during August.

The collection of horse figurines on display at the library is owned by eighth-grader Dawn Berggren, 1546 Algonquin Rd., Des Plaines.

Officials protest

'RTA fund policy gypping suburbs'

by STEVE FORSYTH

Suburban spokesmen Monday protested what they called "inequitable funding" from the Regional Transportation Authority and asked the federal government to investigate RTA funding practices.

The RTA drew criticism during a public hearing on a $30.5 million federal grant application that would help pay operating deficits in fiscal year 1976, which started July 1.

Lois Levey, staff assistant for the North Suburban Mass Transit District, suggested that the Urban Mass Transportation Administration investigate the fairness of the proposed distribution of funds by the RTA.

"The NORTAN board feels that the present RTA interim funding policy for suburban bus service is arbitrary, inequitable, discriminatory and will result in a decline in suburban bus service and patronage," she said.

AN AIDE TO U.S. Rep. Abner J. Mikva, D-10th, read a statement in which Mikva warned, "If the RTA hopes to acquire additional federal funds, it and other agencies throughout the country are going to have to show that they can use the funds that are available now in the most equitable and efficient manner."

Mikva said the RTA's proposed interim policy of fully funding only bus systems that pay for 65 per cent of their own costs does not meet the criterion of fairness.

NORTAN has become the center of the funding issue because it is the first carrier to receive a grant in fiscal 1976. NORTAN has been in financial trouble and needed a grant to meet payroll this month, but the system was not given full deficit financing because it only pays for 56 per cent of its costs.

Joseph DiJolin, NORTAN executive director, said the district can qualify for more RTA money if it drops some minimal routes, but it would have to collect the remainder of its estimated $500,000 deficit from the 21 communities in the district.

DiJolin read several letters Monday from mayors in the district who are opposed to contributing local money when RTA taxes are being used to support other systems such as the Chicago Transit Authority.

DES PLAINES Mayor Herbert Behrel sent a letter questioning the distribution of funds to the suburbs, and Niles Mayor Nicholas Blase went on record as opposing the RTA grant application. "In suburban areas, we must build routes, not cut them," Blase said.

Blase said the RTA discriminates by withholding funds from the suburbs while funding the CTA 100 per cent.

Village Pres. Virginia Hayter, Hoffman Estates, said her village cannot go ahead with transportation plans, even though a study has been completed, because there has been no definite indication of what the RTA will support.

Mrs. Hayter said Hoffman Estates needs public transit because it is five miles from each of the two commuter railroads serving the west and Northwest suburbs.

ON THE ISSUE of federal funding, Mrs. Hayter said her board is not interested in driving the federal government further into debt. She said Hoffman Estates has no position on the grant application "unless the RTA has a long-term commitment to help bring the federal budget back into balance."

She added, "I'm not so sure the black community realizes what you are doing — you're creating a problem of movement to and from the suburbs," she said.

Comments from Monday's public hearing will be sent to UMTA for review before the government takes action on the RTA grant application.

Board OKs Crossings building plan

Buffalo Grove village trustees Monday night approved a plan by the developer of The Crossings to build single-family detached houses instead of duplex units.

The approval, which came after a public hearing, was unanimous, except for the vote of Trustee John Macienthal, who was absent.

The Richards Group will build 41 houses instead of 42 cluster units in its second phase of the development, Ill. Rtes. 83 and 53. The change will not affect the project's density.

The developer and architects, James Otis and Associates, sought the change because single-family houses are considered more marketable.

"The attached duplex unit is not what the market wants," said James Otis. "We want to improve our product," he said.

THE CROSSINGS eventually will include a total of 747 rental and condominium units and single-family houses.

All units will be characterized by a rustic appearance of rough-sawn wood and earthen color.

The second building phase will include a 250-foot-long retention basin which also will be used as a recreational lake. The basin will be on Long Grove village property, but it will be maintained by the Buffalo Grove Park District. A park site also will be donated to the district. Village board approval requires the land donation had been burdened with lien problems.

Park Board Pres. Joseph Settanni told village trustees the park district is apprehensive, because it previously be lien free.

Settanni also requested the recreational area along the retention basin be developed so park personnel easily can maintain the site.

Trustees asked the developer to install 27-foot wide streets instead of the proposed 24-foot wide streets. The request was made after a recommendation by Village Engineer Arnold Seaberg.

THE WIDER streets will allow better access, especially during the winter, when streets need to be snow-plowed, trustees said.

The single-family houses will line an L-shaped street near the southwest corner of the development. One portion of the street will be at the rear of the recreational retention basin, but homeowners will not have rights to the retention basin.

The homes will be available in four basic designs, with 12 height variations, and will range from $55,000 to $72,000. Buyers will be part of a homeowners' association, now existing at the development. Common property along the already existing 120 units and a recreation club are maintained by the association.

Homeowners of townhouses and single-family detached units will pay monthly fees for services and privileges. The development wedges the village of Long Grove to the south and west. The developer is bound by an agreement with the village to conform to previously approved designs of the units.

Psychologist Whipple rehired by NSSEO board

School psychologist John Whipple has been rehired by the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization board, the same board which fired him Aug. 6 for failure to be certified as a school psychologist.

Whipple, director of NSSEO's Center for Child and Family Studies, was given until last Saturday to show he is properly certified. Whipple's credentials are being held by County School Supt. Richard Martwick as a result of Whipple's one-year suspension last fall on the grounds he was acting without proper certification. At that time, Whipple was administrator at Dwyer School for emotionally disturbed children, Arlington Heights. Whipple has been appealing that charge. A decision on the appeal is expected in September.

The recommendation to fire Whipple came from Edward McDonald, NSSEO executive director. Sources said the recommendation was made because Whipple has been unable to renew his psychology certificate because of the action pending on the suspension.

Saturday the NSSEO board agreed to rehire Whipple after Whipple and his attorney Stephen Jurco presented evidence of Whipple's certification. "We have sent a photocopy of John's certificate," said Jurco, who said he was "puzzled" by the chain of events that has led to the dismissal and rehiring of his client. "This whole thing has resulted in bad publicity for Mr. Whipple which has been uncalled for," he said.

Housing starts highest in year

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Housing starts increased by 13.7 per cent in July to the highest level in a year, the Commerce Department reported Monday.

Building permits, which signal still more new construction, increased also but at a more modest rate of 6 per cent from June, the department said. Permits were issued at an annual adjusted rate of 1,607 million units.

The number of houses under construction in July was estimated at 1.238 million compared with a revised June rate of 1,088 million. It was the highest level since July 1974 when new units under construction totaled 1,314 million.

Housing Secretary Carla Hills said the July figures were "encouraging, particularly with regard to multifamily starts. This trend seems to indicate a continued recovery for the housing industry."

Although new home construction affects a relatively small percentage of the population at any given time, the industry's health is a significant measure of the economy as a whole.

Court nixes Arlington's housing plea

by KURT BAER

The Village of Arlington Heights has been denied a rehearing by the U. S. Court of Appeals in the Victorian low-income housing case.

Court judges voted 5 to 3 not to reconsider a June 10 decision in which Arlington Heights was found guilty of racial discrimination for refusing to rezone 15 acres of land east of St. Victor High School, Euclid Avenue and Dryden Place, for a subsidized housing development.

In a letter to village board members, Village Atty. Jack M. Siegel said he planned to prepare a petition to the U. S. Supreme Court for a hearing in the case.

The village has 90 days in which to file its petition asking the Supreme Court to take jurisdiction in the case by a writ of certiorari, an order to the lower court to turn over the trial record.

IF THE SUPREME Court refuses to hear the case, the appeals court decision would stand, and the village could not interfere with construction of the project.

There is no time limit for the Supreme Court to answer the village's petition. The court has adjourned for the summer, and will not reconvene until the fall.

Court battles over the Victorian development, called Lincoln Green, have dragged on since June 1972, when the Metropolitan Housing Development Corp., which would build the project, filed suit in U. S. District Court charging that the village's refusal to rezone the property was racially discriminatory.

After a six-day trial in January 1974, U. S. District Court Judge Thomas R. McMillen upheld the village's position that the rejection was

Wheeling scraps car crusher

A controversial automobile crushing plant proposed for Wheeling Road and W. Pine Street will not be built as a result of action taken Monday night by the Wheeling Village Board.

In a unanimous decision, the board voted to deny building permits for Diamond Scrap Yards Inc., which planned to build the plant on a 2.3-acre site. Diamond had a contract to purchase the land from a trust benefiting former zoning board member Roman Domas.

The board's action ended months of controversy surrounding the project. The proposal had generated protests from residents and village officials alike, who said the project would be a detriment to the area.

The board based its action on an opinion from Village Atty. John Burke, who said the board was not obligated to approve the permit request, because Diamond had not completed purchase of the property and had not spent a significant amount of money on the project.

THE BOARD had met several times with Diamond officials in recent months to discuss the project. Action on the matter was tabled at the latest meeting last month. Company officials, however, were not present Monday night when the final action came.

Burke's opinion was requested, because the board recently voted to remove car crushers from its heavy industrial category.

The proposed site is zoned for heavy industry.

Diamond officials contended the change in the zoning category should not affect their project, because plans for the crusher were presented to the village before the zoning change. In his opinion, however, Burke said Diamond could not be classified as exempt from the zoning change, because the company had not spent significant sums on the project based on zoning.

BURT DIAMOND, president of the company, admitted in testimony earlier this year before the village environmental advisory commission that an escape clause existed in his purchase contract for the site, whereby the deal would be completed only if building permits for the plant were granted.

In a report to the board in May, three members of the commission said the plant should not be constructed, because it would create excessive noise and ground vibrations affecting the surrounding residential area.

More than 740 residents of the area presented petitions to the board this spring opposing the plant because of the potential noise and air pollution.

Burke said he did not know if Diamond would file suit against the village, but he added attorneys for the company have indicated a lawsuit to gain building approval may be filed.

based solely on zoning considerations.

MHDC APPEALED McMillen's ruling to the U. S. Court of Appeals which reversed the lower court in a 2 to 1 decision June 10. Six days later, the village board voted unanimously to appeal the case to the U. S. Supreme Court.

Before filing with the high court, Siegel said he would ask for a rehearing in the appeals court, either by the same three judges who heard the case originally or by all the judges in the Seventh Circuit.

Turndown of the rehearing request does not prejudice the village's chances for review by the Supreme Court, Siegel said.

Allstate investments include village bonds

Allstate Insurance Co. has invested more than $1.3 million in bonds in the Buffalo Grove area, Regional Mgr. Richard A. Hogan said.

The investments have helped in making possible new projects and improvements in waterworks and sewage systems for the Buffalo Grove area, he said.

The investments are part of more than $121.7 million in bonds held by Allstate in 64 counties in Illinois.

The sound of clinking wine glasses echoed through the hallway of the Lutheran Home for the Aged as residents tested their palates on world famous wines.

The party, sponsored by the Geyser Peak Winery of California, gave the senior citizens an opportunity to sample a variety of red, rose and white wines. Bottles of Chablis, Chenin Blanc, Cabar-net Sauvignon and Grand Rose wines were provided.

Partygoers also heard a lecture on the basics of wine tasting. Representatives of the wine company explained the characteristics of various kinds of wines and gave a brief history of the wine industry. The party was arranged by Paul Hellmer, social services director of the home in Arlington Heights.

RTA shortchanging suburbs: officials

by STEVE FORSYTH

Suburban spokesmen Monday protested what they called "inequitable funding" from the Regional Transportation Authority and asked the federal government to investigate RTA funding practices.

The RTA drew criticism during a public hearing on a $50.5 million federal grant application that would help pay operating deficits in fiscal year 1978, which started July 1.

Lola Lovey, staff assistant for the North Suburban Mass Transit District, suggested that the Urban Mass Transportation Administration investigate the fairness of the proposed distribution of funds by the RTA.

"The NORTAN board feels that the present RTA interim funding policy for suburban bus service is arbitrary, inequitable, discriminatory and will result in a decline in suburban bus service and patronage," she said.

AN AIDE TO U.S. Rep. Abner J. Mikva, D-10th, read a statement in which Mikva warned, "If the RTA hopes to acquire additional federal funds; it and other agencies throughout the country are going to have to show that they can use the funds that are available now in the most equitable and efficient manner."

Mikva said the RTA's proposed interim policy of fully funding only bus systems that pay for 65 per cent of their own costs does not meet the criterion of fairness.

NORTAN has become the center of the funding issue because it is the first carrier to receive a grant in fiscal 1976. NORTAN has been in financial trouble and needed a grant to meet payroll this month, but the system was not given full deficit financing because it only pays for 56 per cent of its costs.

Joseph DiJohn, NORTAN executive director, said the district can qualify for more RTA money if it drops some minimal routes, but it would have to collect the remainder of its estimated $500,000 deficit from the 21 communities in the district.

DiJohn read several letters Monday from mayors in the district who are opposed to contributing local money when RTA taxes are being used to support other systems such as the Chicago Transit Authority.

DES PLAINES Mayor Herbert Behr sent a letter questioning the distribution of funds to the suburbs, and Niles Mayor Nicholas Blase went on record as opposing the RTA grant application. "In suburban areas, we must build routes, not cut them," Blase said.

Blase said the RTA discriminates by withholding funds from the suburbs while funding the CTA 100 per cent.

Village Pres. Virginia Hayter, Hoffman Estates, said her village cannot go ahead with transportation plans, even though a study has been completed, because there has been no definite indication of what the RTA will support.

Mrs. Hayter said Hoffman Estates needs public transit because it is five miles from each of the two commuter railroads serving the west and Northwest suburbs.

ON THE ISSUE of federal funding, Mrs. Hayter said her board is not interested in driving the federal government further into debt. She said Hoffman Estates has no position on the grant application "unless the RTA has a long-term commitment to help bring the federal budget back into balance."

She added, "I'm not so sure the black community realizes what you are doing — you're creating a problem of movement to and from the suburbs," she said.

Comments from Monday's public hearing will be sent to UMTA for review before the government takes action on the RTA grant application.

School talks impasse may end soon

by MARILYN McDONALD

Board members and teachers in Prospect Heights Dist. 23 are optimistic about ending an impasse in contract negotiations that has stalled talks since July 17.

Teachers and board members met last week to discuss why talks broke down. Negotiations broke off July 17 after board members made counter proposals on pay for extra duty, summer school and merit, but teachers made no new concessions.

Kenneth Bates, spokesman for the teacher union, said he thought both sessions last week went well.

"They felt we didn't exchange a counterproposal with them, when we didn't think we had to. Much of what they wanted would have come from negotiating, give and take," Bates said.

"I would expect we'll pick up where we left off," said Bates.

VINCENT BATTAGLIA, board member and spokesman for the board negotiating team, said the two sides may go to mediation depending "on the sum and substance of both packages" offered by the groups. What is offered by the teachers "may be substantial or it may not be enough," he said.

Battaglia said that the feeling at both sessions last week was good.

"The board was positive and I think the teachers were too," he said.

Board members and teachers have been negotiating since Feb. 19. They are working on salary items for the second year of a two-year contract.

AMONG THEIR salary requests, teachers have asked for $50,000 in merit and across-the-board raises. In its last proposal, board members offered $40,000 for merit and across-the-board raises. Teachers wanted a 15 per cent increase in extra duty pay, and the board last offered a 10 per cent increase. Teachers also asked for a 15 per cent hike in summer school pay, but board members last offered a 10 per cent hike.

Teachers and board members will meet again Thursday to decide whether they can proceed with normal negotiations or if they must call a mediator to settle the dispute.

Park district vote on annex slated Oct. 25

A tentative date of Oct. 25 has been set for a River Trails Park District referendum aimed at the annexation of an apartment area immediately north of the district.

Two ordinances calling for the annexations will be filed this week with the Circuit Court by Park District Atty. Roger A. Bjorvik.

One ordinance calls for the annexation of the Gladstone Glen apartments, 1509 S. Wolf Rd., and the other seeks the annexation of the Willow Park Shopping Plaza and the Quince Park, Loch Lomond, Willow River, Orchard Trace and Piper Lane apartments.

The property the district hopes to annex is bounded by Palatine Road on the north, Milwaukee Avenue and River Road on the east, Willow Lane on the south and Wolf Road on the west.

THE WHEELING Park District also hopes to annex the area, which has an estimated 5,000 residents, but it could not hold a referendum because two properties larger than 20 acres, which have to be annexed voluntarily. (Continued on Page 5)

Hamer sues village for pact pay

Paul Hamer, former village attorney, is seeking more than $21,000 in salary from the Village of Wheeling in a breach-of-contract suit.

Hamer, who was fired July 7 by the village board, is seeking $21,000 in base salary plus additional estimated hourly pay. Hamer's four-year contract with the village was set to expire April 30, 1976.

"There are no punitive damages sought," as Fred Weizmann, the attorney of record in the suit and Hamer's Northbrook law firm partner, Weizmann said Hamer was to have filed the suit last Thursday in Circuit Court.

"In addition to the base salary of $21,000, there was a certain average amount of hourly pay asked for in the suit," said Weizmann. "The contract's base pay covered about 95 per cent of Paul's activities for the village."

WEIZMANN estimated the additional pay being sought would equal "a couple of hundred dollars a month." He said such pay would have covered activities such as court time.

Hamer's contract, the legality of which most board members have questioned, was signed by Village Mgr. George Passolt and not by the village board. Last May, the board voted to make the village attorney's job subject to its "pleasure" rather than by contract.

Hamer was fired because the board, four members of which were newly elected last April, felt he was "incompatible" with them. The board, five members of which were elected on the Wheeling Improvement Party ticket, then selected John M. Burke, who has worked for the WHIP party as an attorney, to replace Hamer.

Hamer, before losing his job, had offered to take a leave of absence with pay, but the board refused the offer.

A SECOND SUIT against the Village of Wheeling, which involves a contractual dispute, apparently was not filed this week as expected.

Arthur Zimmerman, attorney for former police chief Peter T. Guttilla, had said a lawsuit would be filed last week if the village board had not reinstated his client. Zimmerman's office said Monday that no suit has been filed yet, however.

Guttilla was dismissed from office July 29, when former chief M. O. "Syke" Horcher was reinstated by the village's Fire and Police Commission. Horcher had been on disability leave for three years as the result of suffering a stroke.

Guttilla's contract runs through June 1976.

Sports complex work proceeding on schedule

Construction on the Prospect Heights Park District's new community center-sports complex, which is costing in excess of $600,000, is continuing on schedule.

Prospect Heights Park Director Ronald Greenberg said the contractor estimates the building will be completed "shortly after the first of the year." The referendum-approved center is being built at Lions Park, Camp McDonald Road and Elm Street.

Work on the renovation of the district's pool is to start next week, with the new gutter system scheduled to be installed beginning Sept. 21. The old pool was closed for the summer because of the construction work.

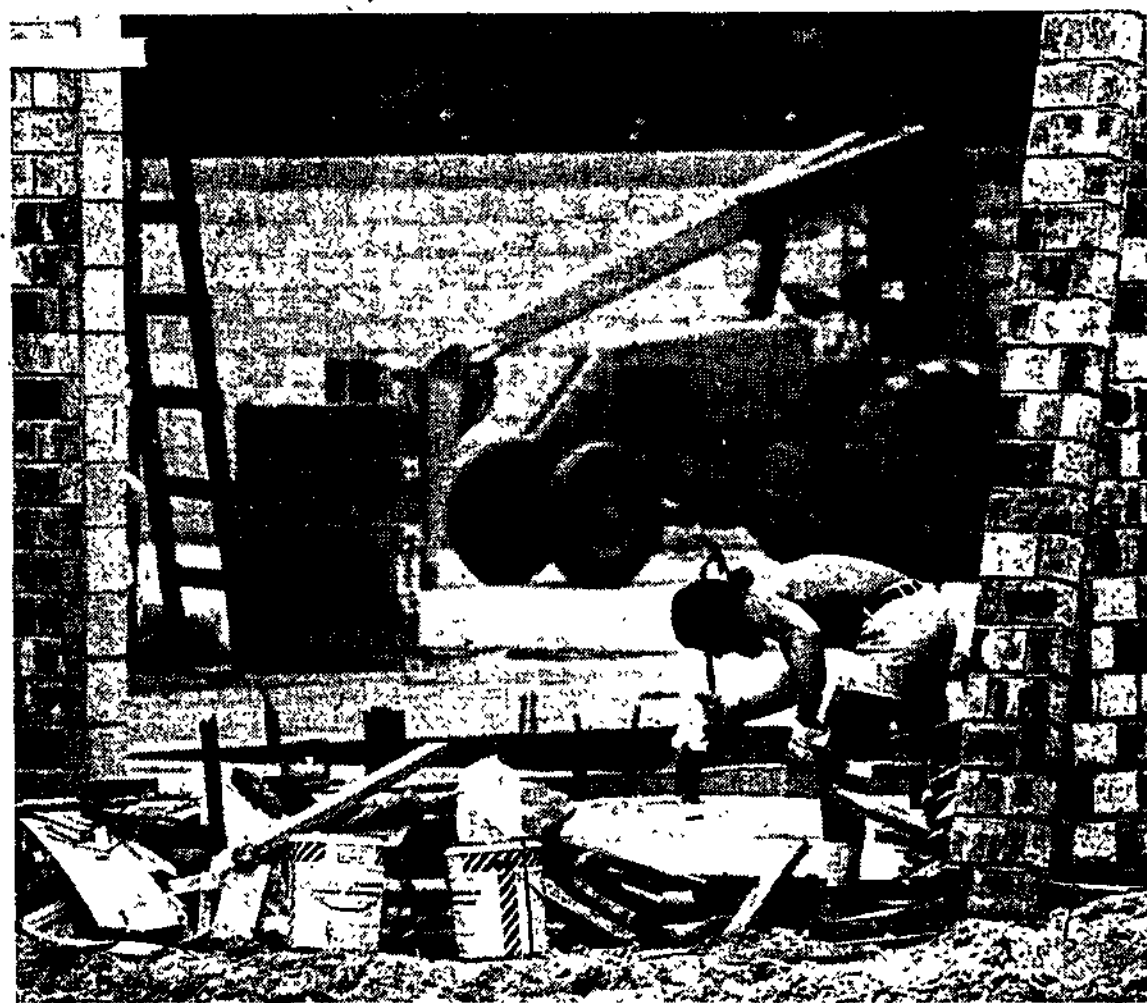

Now fencing and lights have been installed at the Lions Park baseball field, and although the lights are operational now, the Little League season has ended.

Greenberg said the first two of three layers of asphalt have been put in for the six tennis courts and Lions

Park. Fencing for the courts should be installed sometime during the next two weeks. The courts should be finished by early September, he said.

At Commonwealth Edison Park, south of the Country Gardens subdivision, grading and laying of gravel for the parking lot and foot paths is nearly complete, Greenberg said. Work on the tennis courts there is proceeding at about the same pace as the Lions Park courts.

"The very good weather recently has helped," Greenberg said.

Oktoberfest set at St. Alphonsus

The third annual Prospect Heights Oktoberfest will be from 1 to 5 p.m. Sept. 21 at the St. Alphonsus Church and school grounds, 411 N. Wheeling Rd., Prospect Heights.

Organizers are looking for artists, sculptors, collectors and craftsmen to exhibit their work; donations for the book and white elephant sales; and community organizations to participate.

The Oktoberfest has been relocated this year because it has outgrown the old parking lot at Camp McDonald and Elmhurst roads.

Exhibitors will be charged $5. Entries should be sent to John Fedyski, 2 Drake Terrace, Prospect Heights 60070. Community groups should contact June Wolf, 392-6146.

THE WHITE ELEPHANT sale will be conducted by the Prospect Heights Improvement Assn. Bicentennial committee, headed by Lynn Klotz. Donations of sale items are being sought, but clothes and appliances will not be accepted.

A five-woman committee has been set up to handle questions about the sale. Items either will be picked up by them or can be dropped off at their homes. The five are Irene Bentley, 38 N. Wildwood Dr., 537-6374; Caryl Lemke, 202 N. Elm St., 253-2305; Betty Opels, 301 N. Waterman Ave., 255-4423; Nancy Lambert, 30 E. Stonegate Dr., 541-0036; and Mary Thomas, 706 N. Elmhurst Rd., 398-5613.

Proceeds will go toward community Bicentennial activities.

Refreshments, beer and bratwurst and Palatine's six-piece "Oom-Pa-Pa" band will be at the Oktoberfest.

Psychologist Whipple rehired by NSSEO board

School psychologist John Whipple has been rehired by the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization board, the same board which fired him Aug. 6 for failure to be certified as a school psychologist.

Whipple, director of NSSEO's Center for Child and Family Studies, was given until last Saturday to show he is properly certified. Whipple's credentials are being held by County School Supt. Richard Martwick as a result of Whipple's one-year suspension last fall on the grounds he was acting without proper certification. At that time, Whipple was administrator at Dwyer School for emotionally disturbed children, Arlington Heights. Whipple has been appealing that charge. A decision on the appeal is expected in September.

The recommendation to fire Whipple came from Edward McDonald, NSSEO executive director. Sources said the recommendation was made because Whipple has been unable to renew his psychology certificate because of the action pending on the suspension.

Saturday the NSSEO board agreed to rehire Whipple after Whipple and his attorney Stephen Jurco presented evidence of Whipple's certification. "We have sent a photocopy of John's certificate," said Jurco, who said he was "puzzled" by the chain of events that has led to the dismissal and rehiring of his client. "This whole thing has resulted in bad publicity for Mr. Whipple which has been uncalled for," he said.

The Wheeling Park District is trying to persuade the two owners to annex voluntarily so it can hold a referendum should the River Trails referendum fail.

Both park districts have pledged to buy property in the area for a park site. The most likely location would be adjacent to Stevenson School, 1445 S. Wolf Rd.

The area would bring in an estimated $125,000 tax income to which-ever district annexes it. To be successful, the annexation referendum

Officials protest

'RTA fund policy gypping suburbs'

by STEVE FORSYTH

Suburban spokesmen Monday protested what they called "inequitable funding" from the Regional Transportation Authority and asked the federal government to investigate RTA funding practices.

The RTA drew criticism during a public hearing on a $50.5 million federal grant application that would help pay operating deficits in fiscal year 1976, which started July 1.

Lois Levey, staff assistant for the North Suburban Mass Transit District, suggested that the Urban Mass Transportation Administration investigate the fairness of the proposed distribution of funds by the RTA.

"The NORTAN board feels that the present RTA interim funding policy for suburban bus service is arbitrary, inequitable, discriminatory and will result in a decline in suburban bus service and patronage," she said.

AN AIDE TO U.S. Rep. Abner J.

Mikva, D-10th, read a statement in which Mikva warned, "If the RTA hopes to acquire additional federal funds, it and other agencies throughout the country are going to have to show that they can use the funds that are available now in the most equitable and efficient manner."

Mikva said the RTA's proposed interim policy of fully funding only bus systems that pay for 65 per cent of their own costs does not meet the criterion of fairness.

NORTAN has become the center of the funding issue because it is the first carrier to receive a grant in fiscal 1976. NORTAN has been in financial trouble and needed a grant to meet payroll this month, but the system was not given full deficit financing because it only pays for 56 per cent of its costs.

Joseph DiJohn, NORTAN executive director, said the district can qualify for more RTA money if it drops some minimal routes, but it would have to collect the remainder of its estimated $500,000 deficit from the 21 communities in the district.

DiJohn read several letters Monday from mayors in the district who are opposed to contributing local money when RTA taxes are being used to support other systems such as the Chicago Transit Authority.

DES PLAINES Mayor Herbert Behrel sent a letter questioning the distribution of funds to the suburbs, and Niles Mayor Nicholas Blase went on record as opposing the RTA grant application. "In suburban areas, we must build routes, not cut them," Blase said.

Blase said the RTA discriminates by withholding funds from the suburbs while funding the CTA 100 per cent.

Village Pres. Virginia Hayter, Hoffman Estates, said her village cannot go ahead with transportation plans, even though a study has been completed, because there has been no definite indication of what the RTA will support.

Mrs. Hayter said Hoffman Estates needs public transit because it is five miles from each of the two commuter railroads serving the west and Northwest suburbs.

ON THE ISSUE of federal funding, Mrs. Hayter said her board is not interested in driving the federal government further into debt. She said Hoffman Estates has no position on the grant application "unless the RTA has a long-term commitment to help bring the federal budget back into balance."

She added, "I'm not so sure the black community realizes what you are doing — you're creating a problem of movement to and from the suburbs," she said.

Comments from Monday's public hearing will be sent to UMTA for review before the government takes action on the RTA grant application.

25 cents per $100 assessed valuation

Schools OK Sept. 27 tax hike referendum

by JUDY JOBBITT

A Sept. 27 referendum will be held in Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 to seek a 25-cent per $100 assessed valuation education-tax-rate increase.

The board of education Monday approved setting the 25-cent tax referendum despite an administration request for a 40-cent per $100 assessed valuation tax rate increase.

"I oppose a 40-cent increase," said Board Pres. Judith Zanca. "I'd like to recommend a 25-cent increase — 20 cents for the deficit resulting from our decreased state aid and 5 cents for inflation and other financial problems."

Supt. Roger Bardwell had recommended the higher tax-rate increase saying only 15 cents would be used initially. The remainder of the increase would have been implemented in conjunction with the required tax rate reduction in High School Dist. 214.

BOARD MEMBER Emil Bahnmater said he could not seek a 40-cent increase, because "our track record as a board chopping back on the budget has not been the greatest."

"We must show the voters that we are not only asking for more money, but are willing to take measures to pull ourselves out" of a deficit, said Bahnmater.

Mrs. Zanca said she opposed the 40-cent increase, because "once you give the educators the money, you lose control."

"I just don't feel I could justify any more than 25 cents," said Mrs. Zanca.

The district is projecting a $1.67 million deficit in the education and building funds for the 1975-76 school year. Surplus funds from last year and money from the working cash fund will make up for the deficit this year. However, neither fund includes salary increases this year which would add to the projected deficit.

The district also is receiving $2.1 million less from state aid this year, partly because of declining enrollment. The district also is not receiving the maximum state aid allowed, because its tax rate is below the required $1.95 per $100 assessed valuation level.

A tax increase of 15 cents per $100 assessed valuation would bring the district up to the level required by the state to receive full state aid.

JOSEPH STECKER, a Dist. 59 resident and finance committee member, said he doesn't "see how the board can ask for one single penny before I see some cutting of the budget." He presented the board with recommendations for cutting about $1 million from this year's budget.

Mrs. Zanca said the budget committee is reviewing the budget for possible cuts. Updated figures from the administration show education budget cuts of $247,644, which includes $170,792 for the Northwest Suburban Special Education deaf education program. Dist. 59 had proposed moving the deaf education program from Arlington Heights Dist. 25 to Dist. 59. The NSSEO board has decided to leave the program at its current location in Dist. 25.

Elk Grove Village needs at least an additional $1 million to avoid a budget deficit and to provide needed services to the community, Village Mgr. Charles Willis told members of the village board in a special committee meeting Monday night.

He said the village's financial future "is at a crossroads," noting the community also will be confronting continued rising costs.

Village officials Monday also faced the facts they may have to:

- Cut back on existing municipal services and not add new services.
- Increase property taxes.
- Adopt other new taxes such as a utility tax or increase charges for licenses and permits.

"Today's economic conditions have not bypassed the municipal budget," Willis said. "Increased costs and commodities have caused us to revise the original 1975-76 village budget," he said.

Willis predicted a continued decline in sales tax, building permits and other village revenues will add to the deficit.

Housing starts highest in year

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Housing starts increased by 13.7 per cent in July to the highest level in a year, the Commerce Department reported Monday.

Building permits, which signal still more new construction, increased also but at a more modest rate of 6 per cent from June, the department said. Permits were issued at an annual adjusted rate of 1,007 million units.

The number of houses under construction in July was estimated at 1,238 million compared with a revised June rate of 1,088 million. It was the highest level since July 1974 when Village officials must decide by next Tuesday whether they will increase property taxes in the village, Willis said.

Recently granted home-rule status gives the village greater taxing power.

Robbery suspects face many counts

Several area police departments filed armed robbery charges Monday against three Chicagoans arrested last weekend, as part of a holdup gang that preys on Mexican busboys.

Other charges are pending while the investigation continues.

Police from Elk Grove Village, Mount Prospect, Palatine, Bloomington and Chicago for several months have been looking for the holdup gang that has robbed Mexican busboys of cash and immigration documents.

Bloomington police and state troopers arrested the suspects, Helen Moreno, 34, Jose Avila, 19, and Arturo Leyva, 19, Saturday in Bloomington.

After a police lineup Saturday in Elk Grove Village, Avila was charged by Mount Prospect police with the June 23 armed robbery of two Mexican busboys at the Old Orchard Country Club. His bond was set at $50,000.

AVILA AND LEYVA were both charged by Bloomington police for in taxes.

Zettek praised Stoddler's stance against more taxes, saying "I'll vote your way if you can show me how that measure will bring us the additional million dollars we need."

ZETTEK AND several other trustees maintained minor economizing would not wipe out the financial difficulties.

an Aug. 14 armed robbery of busboys working in the area. Bond was set at $10,000 each for those charges.

Elk Grove Village and Palatine police charged Ms. Moreno with armed robbery. She is suspected of being involved in the May 8 robbery of three busboys in Palatine and the May 18 Elk Grove Village robbery of busboys, who worked in a local restaurant and lived at the Holiday Inn in Elk Grove Village.

A $25,000 bond was set for the Elk Grove Village charge, and a $30,000 bond was set for the Palatine charge.

Elk Grove Village police Sgt. Ron-

Village officials Tuesday will vote on a tax levy ordinance for the village. In the past, the village imposed a maximum rate of .2664 per $100 assessed valuation for municipal expenses only.

The present village tax rate, which includes the village library and other expenses, amounts to 60 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

aid Iden said none of the suspects were able to post bond and are being held in Du Page County jail.

Ms. Moreno is scheduled to appear in Elk Grove Village branch of Circuit Court Wednesday.

Sgt. Iden said the case was a difficult one to handle because of the language barrier and the mobility of the victims.

"We believe there are many cases that have not been reported and many cases of the victims returning to Mexico because they are frightened and do not know where to go for help," said Sgt. Iden.

Psychologist Whipple rehired by NSSEO board

School psychologist John Whipple has been rehired by the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization board, the same board which fired him Aug. 6 for failure to be certified as a school psychologist.

Whipple, director of NSSEO's Center for Child and Family Studies, was given until last Saturday to show he is properly certified. Whipple's credentials are being held by County School Supt. Richard Martwick as a result of Whipple's one-year suspension last fall on the grounds he was acting without proper certification. At that time, Whipple was administrator at Dwyer School for emotionally dis-

Village to vote Aug. 26 on miniature golf course

Elk Grove Village officials are expected to vote Aug. 26 on the annexation petition of Robert Swiglo, who is asking for annexation and approval to operate a miniature golf course on Devon Avenue.

A disagreement about the location of water and sewer lines postponed a vote on the petition at a recent annexation hearing, and the hearing was continued to 7 p.m. Aug. 26.

Swiglo's proposal has the plan commission's approval. He plans to build and operate a "Putt-Putt Golf Course of America, Inc." facility on the approximately 1.2-acre site.

Swiglo earlier had agreed to a $617 charge to extend the water and sewer facilities and questioned why the annexation agreement later demanded he construct, at his expense, approximately 1,065 feet of water and sewer line.

The longer line would take the mains around an adjoining property rather than along its frontage on Devon Avenue.

Fathers asked to attend Lively school orientation

Lively Junior High School in Elk Grove Village is putting out a special call to all dads.

The school is asking fathers to attend orientation programs today, Wednesday and Thursday at the school, 999 Leicester Rd. The school will be open for students to pick up class schedules and tour the building from 1 to 3 p.m. and 6:30 to 8:30 p.m.

Sixth graders are scheduled to attend Tuesday, seventh graders

Wednesday and eighth graders Thursday.

"We have no problem getting the women in," said H. J. Berger, associate principal. "It's the men we want."

If students cannot come next week, class schedules can be picked up Monday through Thursday from 9 to 11 a.m. and 1 to 3 p.m. Students who have not picked up their schedules before the first day of school Sept. 2 should report to the library that day.

Psychologist Whipple rehired by NSSEO board

The recommendation to fire Whipple came from Edward McDonald, NSSEO executive director. Sources said the recommendation was made because Whipple has been unable to renew his psychology certificate because of the action pending on the suspension.

Saturday the NSSEO board agreed to rehire Whipple after Whipple and his attorney Stephen Jurco presented evidence of Whipple's certification. "We have sent a photocopy of John's certificate," said Jurco, who said he was "puzzled" by the chain of events that has led to the dismissal and rehiring of his client. "This whole thing has resulted in bad publicity for Mr. Whipple which has been uncalled for," he said.

'Suburbs get short end of RTA funds'

by STEVE FORSYTH

Suburban spokesmen Monday protested what they called "inequitable funding" from the Regional Transportation Authority and asked the federal government to investigate RTA funding practices.

The RTA drew criticism during a public hearing on a $50.5 million federal grant application that would help pay operating deficits in fiscal year 1976, which started July 1.

Lois Lovey, staff assistant for the North Suburban Mass Transit District, suggested that the Urban Mass Transportation Administration investigate the fairness of the proposed distribution of funds by the RTA.

"The NORTHRAN board feels that the present RTA interim funding policy for suburban bus service is arbitrary, inequitable, discriminatory and will result in a decline in suburban bus service and patronage," she said.

AN AIDE TO U.S. Rep. Abner J. Mikva, D-Ill., read a statement in which Mikva warned, "If the RTA hopes to acquire additional federal funds, it and other agencies throughout the country are going to have to show that they can use the funds that are available now in the most equitable and efficient manner."

Mikva said the RTA's proposed interim policy of fully funding only bus systems that pay for 65 per cent of their own costs does not meet the criterion of fairness.

NORTHRAN has become the center of the funding issue because it is the first carrier to receive a grant in fiscal 1976. NORTHRAN has been in financial trouble and needed a grant to meet payrolls this month, but the system was not given full deficit financing because it only pays for 56 per cent of its costs.

Joseph DiJohn, NORTHRAN executive director, said the district can qualify for more RTA money if it drops some minimal routes, but it would have to collect the remainder of its estimated $500,000 deficit from the 21 communities in the district.

DiJohn read several letters Monday from mayors in the district who are opposed to contributing local money when RTA taxes are being used to support other systems such as the Chicago Transit Authority.

DES PLAINES Mayor Herbert Behrel sent a letter questioning the distribution of funds to the suburbs, and Niles Mayor Nicholas Blase went on record as opposing the RTA grant application. "In suburban areas, we must build routes, not cut them," Blase said.

Blase said the RTA discriminates by withholding funds from the suburbs while funding the CTA 100 per cent.

Village Pres. Virginia Hayter, Hoffman Estates, said her village cannot go ahead with transportation plans, even though a study has been completed, because there has been no definite indication of what the RTA will support.

Mrs. Hayter said Hoffman Estates needs public transit because it is five miles from each of the two commuter railroads serving the west and North-west suburbs.

ON THE ISSUE of federal funding, Mrs. Hayter said her board is not interested in driving the federal government further into debt. She said Hoffman Estates has no position on the grant application "unless the RTA has a long-term commitment to help bring the federal budget back into balance."

She added, "I'm not so sure the black community realizes what you are doing — you're creating a problem of movement to and from the suburbs," she said.

Comments from Monday's public hearing will be sent to UMTA for review before the government takes action on the RTA grant application.

Village OKs annex pact for 940-unit subdivision

A major 940-unit single-family house subdivision planned north of the Northwest Tollway in Hoffman Estates has won approval from village officials.

Village trustees Monday night voted to enter into an annexation agreement with Centex Homes of Illinois Inc. to incorporate and permit construction of the subdivision on 336 acres near Algonquin and Freeman roads in Palatine and Barrington townships.

The $50 million proposed subdivision, under study by the village since January, will include 636 single-family four-bedroom houses similar to those built by Centex in the nearby Winston Knolls subdivision and 304 zero-lot-line concept homes with three and four bedrooms.

The zero-lot-line houses will be built on 4,000-square-foot minimum lot sizes, eliminating conventional side and rear yards. The conventional homes will be built on 8,500-square-foot minimum lots.

$4,000 auto, phone taken in 2 incidents

Hoffman Estates police were investigating thefts of a $4,000 auto from a home and a pay telephone from the construction site for the Hoffman Estates Nursing Home.

Police said the telephone was taken from the site at 1543 N. Barrington Rd. between 5 p.m. Friday and 7:30 a.m. Monday.

George Cayer, Escanaba, Mich., reported Sunday that his station wagon was stolen while he was visiting relatives at 1978 W. Hancock Dr.

TERMS OF THE annexation agreement call for Centex to pay $94,000 to the village to meet ordinance requirements, which set a $100-per-unit developer contribution. The home-building firm also will pay another $135 per unit for each unit built in the Barrington Township portion of the project.

The money, some $82,350, will be held for five years while negotiations are held to incorporate the entire 336-acre site into Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 and High School Dist. 211.

That portion of the agreement was included because of the continuing opposition of Barrington Township Unit Dist. 220 to the project. More than half the project is in Dist. 220, but officials there have said they want no more children in their district.

Children from the subdivision may have to be bused nine miles to the district's Carpentersville school if the development remains in the Dist. 220 boundaries, school officials have said.

Centex officials have agreed to negotiate with Dist. 220 to disconnect the project from the district and join the Palatine Township school districts.

Dist. 15 already has accepted a 10-acre school site donation from the developers and a $32,350 cash contribution.

THE NEW CENTEX project will include 190 more homes than Centex's Winston Knolls subdivision built in 1970 just east of the new development. Winston Knolls residents have expressed no opposition to the new project, other than the proposed name, "Winston Knolls West."

Centex officials said Monday night they have agreed to drop the "Knolls" name in the new project title.

Burglars take $2,300 in stereo equipment

About $2,300 worth of stereo equipment was reported stolen Monday in a burglary at the John Bordin home, 1500 Arlington Ln., Schaumburg.

Police said they could find no signs of forced entry.

Police also are investigating the theft of a $500 cabinet from the lobby of a Village-in-the-Park apartment building, 1330 N. Valley Lake Dr. Police were told the cabinet measured seven feet by five feet.

Housing starts highest in year

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Housing starts increased by 13.7 per cent in July to the highest level in a year, the Commerce Department reported Monday.

Building permits, which signal still more new construction, increased also but at a more modest rate of 6 per cent from June, the department said. Permits were issued at an annual adjusted rate of 1,007 million units.

The number of houses under construction in July was estimated at 1.238 million compared with a revised June rate of 1.088 million. It was the highest level since July 1974 when new units under construction totaled 1.314 million.

Housing Secretary Carla Hills said the July figures were "encouraging, particularly with regard to multifamily starts. This trend seems to indicate a continued recovery for the housing industry."

Although new home construction affects a relatively small percentage of the population at any given time, the industry's health is a significant measure of the economy as a whole.

Project gets new name

G-S Builders, Arlington Heights, have chosen a new name, Kingsport Village, for their 37.7-acre Schaumburg tract south of Lancer Park where 174 houses, carrying an "average" sale price of $35,000, are planned.

In an earlier proposal for condominium apartments and townhouses, G-S Builders called the development Country Lane.

When the new plan is brought to the village board Aug. 26, representatives of Lancer Park Homeowners' Assn. say they will insist on assurance from the builder that their homes, to the north of the project, will not be flooded as a result of the new construction.

"We also believe these homes must be compatible with ours and that G-S Builders should consider a market study on the sales feasibility of the houses they propose before construction begins," said Malik Parkash, homeowners association board chairman.

AN APPOINTED Schaumburg official, who is the doting father of a teen-age beauty, commented on his views concerning premarital sex and the use of marijuana recently asked of Betty Ford.

"We believe that because of the way we have raised our daughter, she probably would not have an affair, but if it happened, neither her mother nor I would publicly discuss or encourage her along these lines," the official said, adding his daughter was "offended and disappointed" by Mrs. Ford's handling of the hypothetical question put to her by a network broadcaster.

"And, as far as grass is concerned, I go out and mow my lawn every week," he said.

GERTRUDE KOSIK is the new part-time "person Friday" for Schaumburg Chamber of Commerce and Industry. She can be reached at 894-8924 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. daily.

PRAISE FOR Schaumburg paramedics Terry O'Callaghan and Art Strolke came recently from a Schaumburg Green resident who asked she not be identified. The woman said she was impressed by the team's quick response to a plea for medical aid for a 3-year-old child, who was suffering from a high fever.

HOFFMAN ESTATES Pres. Virginia Hayter is a new driver. Ginger-hor-honor reports she recently passed her road test with a perfect score and is greatly enjoying doing village business in the new car fellow board members insisted be purchased for her.

PHIL OSSIFER says the speed and power of new cars helps bring places closer together — like this world and the next.

OVER... AND THEN under. In his first local public appearance since leaving office, May 1, Robert O. LeBeau at Sunday's fourth annual Schaumburg Atcher, former Schaumburg village president, could have been demonstrating the fine arts of politics for his successor, Raymond Kessell, and Shirley Archer, former Schaumburg village president, could have been demonstrating the fine arts of politics.

Sport outing to benefit fire auxiliary

Local businessmen and real estate developers who do business in and with the village of Hoffman Estates are being encouraged to attend the Sept. 4 Hoffman Estates P and Z (planning and zoning) Invitational at Moon Lake Village Golf Course and Recreation Center.

The event will feature golf, tennis and swimming with prizes to be awarded competitors in each sport.

A buffet, prepared by Village Pres. Virginia M. Hayter, will be served from 7 to 9 p.m.

Proceeds will go to the Hoffman Estates Firemen's Auxiliary for temporary housing on an emergency basis for fire victims.

Paintings by students of the Schaumburg School of Art will be on display at the Schaumburg Township Public Library, 32 W. Library Ln., through Aug. 31.

9 apply for Bliss' seat on Dist. 15 board

Junior high area changed

Residents of the Arlington Crest subdivision in Palatine will now be able to send their children to a Palatine junior high school instead of Rolling Meadows' Carl Sandburg Junior High School.

Board members decided Wednesday to make Winston Park Junior High School the home school for the Palatine subdivision. The decision currently affects less than 20 junior high students from that area, but board members may consider allowing elementary pupils from the subdivision attend Palatine schools after Jefferson School is built in Hoffman Estates, said Frank Whiteley, district superintendent.

Parents asked the board to allow their children to attend Palatine elementary and junior high schools because they will eventually go to High School Dist. 211 high schools. Rolling Meadows elementary schools feed into High School Dist. 214 schools.

Budget on public display

Dist. 15's proposed $18.8 million 1975-76 budget will be on display in all district schools this month prior to a public budget hearing scheduled for Sept. 17. A written summary of the budget's major increases and decreases will accompany each display document. A copy of the proposed budget also will be on display at the district offices, 505 S. Quentin Rd., Palatine.

Plans introduced for office building

Plans for construction of a building in Kaufman and Broad Industrial Park were introduced by Century Plaza Industries at last week's Hoffman Estates Plan Commission meeting.

The structure in the park near Barrington and Hassell roads would contain 13 offices, each with 2,500 square feet.

Further discussion is expected at the Aug. 27 plan commission hearing.

For Dist. 54 teachers

Schools slate sex bias workshop

A workshop centering on sexual discrimination and stereotyping will be presented this fall for teachers in Schaumburg Township Dist. 54.

The board of education has approved paying $4,000 to Karen-Feldman Associates Inc., for conducting the program Sept. 16.

Board member Dr. Edgar Feldman posed objections to the workshop until he received "assurance that we won't have any radical kooks" conducting the sessions.

Feldman was also concerned that the company had never conducted a workshop for elementary school teachers, although the group did hold similar sessions at Harper College last year.

Sherry Reynolds, board member, said the group would bring in capable people to conduct the workshops. "It is my feeling they have sufficient knowledge in the area to know who to bring in to do the workshops," she said about the firm.

Nine candidates have applied for the Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 board seat vacated by Robert Bliss last week.

Board Pres. Walter Sundling said the large number of applicants, five more than sought board seats in the regular April election, probably was "Prompted by the letter sent out by Walter Kendall," the newest Dist. 15 board member. Kendall sent out nearly 80 letters to civic groups and individuals, soliciting applications for the board vacancy. The deadline for applications was 4 p.m. Monday.

Norman C. Knapp, 36, of 124 Elizabeth Ct., Palatine, became the ninth applicant Monday. Knapp is a group supervisor in the product engineering department of GTE Automatic Electric, Northlake. He and his family have lived in the district four years.

"I'm a dedicated individual with a sincere desire to be involved," Knapp said. He is chairman of the board for the Palatine Jaycees and an active member in the Presbyterian church. Three of his children attend Lake Louise School, and one is a recent graduate of Winston Park Junior High School.

Palatine; Irene Sjustedt, 314 Suffolk Ct., Hoffman Estates; Robert Wente, 3421 Richness, Rolling Meadows; and Ronald R. Hunter, 447 N. Willow Wood Dr., Palatine.

Board members will interview applicants Aug. 26 and Sept. 3. An appointment probably will be made at the regular board meeting Sept. 10, but must be made by Sept. 12 to stay within the legal 30-day appointment limit.

Bicentennial, village's 20th may be observed jointly

The Schaumburg Bicentennial Commission is recommending that community groups participate in a dual observance of the nation's 200th birthday and the village's 20th anniversary.

Suggestions for the dual observance were made last week when commission members discussed the recruitment of community organizations.

Tom Kosin, temporary chairman of the commission, said the Bicentennial committee is trying to help "coordinate or suggest projects for PTAs, clubs, businesses or any group wishing to participate."

Activities planned for the Bicentennial celebration include an outdoor costume ball, construction of a band gazebo near the lake at the municipal building, a pageant at St. Peter Lutheran Church and plantings at the Spring Valley Nature Center. The commission also is compiling a community calendar for 1976.

Anyone interested in sponsoring Bicentennial projects should contact Kosin at 894-4677. The next meeting of the commission will be at 8 p.m. Sept. 19 in the Great Hall on Civic Drive.

RTA shortchanging suburbs: officials

by STEVE FORSYTH

Suburban spokesmen Monday protested what they called "inequitable funding" from the Regional Transportation Authority and asked the federal government to investigate RTA funding practices.

The RTA drew criticism during a public hearing on a $50.5 million federal grant application that would help pay operating deficits in fiscal year 1978, which started July 1.

Lola Levey, staff assistant for the North Suburban Mass Transit District, suggested that the Urban Mass Transportation Administration investigate the fairness of the proposed distribution of funds by the RTA.

"The NORTAN board feels that the present RTA interim funding policy for suburban bus service is arbitrary, inequitable, discriminatory and will result in a decline in suburban bus service and patronage," she said.

City's fire protection under study by consultant

A consulting firm hired by the City of Rolling Meadows will begin evaluating local fire protection this week.

The study, being prepared by National Loss Control Service Corp., Long Grove, will include an analysis of the current operations of the fire department and guidelines for its development in the next 10 to 15 years.

The information obtained from the study, to be completed in November, is expected to give the city council facts and figures with which to determine the need, if any, for additional fire stations and changes in manpower.

The council and its committees have discussed building one or more fire stations and increasing the number of firefighters for the past two years. The aldermen decided this spring to seek the advice of professional fire protection consultants before taking any action.

JAMES TRAPP, National Loss fire protection engineer, said Monday the first step in the agency's evaluation will be to examine current and projected land uses in existing corporate limits and areas of potential annexation in terms of their fire potential.

This phase of the study also will focus on traffic patterns in the city, especially near Arlington Park Race Track. Trapp said consultants are particularly concerned about whether race track traffic slows the department's response to calls in the nearby industrial area.

Other targets of the study include the fire department's training program, maintenance procedures, alarm and communications systems, ambulance service and fire prevention bureau. The city's fire insurance rating also will be reviewed, with a projection of the rating if the consultants' recommendations are put into effect.

City may ask $36,000 to take streets

It could cost developer Edward Zale about $36,000 to turn the private streets in his Meadow Edge project over to the City of Rolling Meadows.

That is the price tag on the special snow removal equipment it will take to clear the cul-de-sacs in the development, which have a radius of about 20 feet each. Standard city snowplows are too large to negotiate turns in the areas.

The proposition of paying for the equipment was put to Zale Tuesday night by Daniel Weber, 4th, chairman of the city council's public works, building and zoning committee. Although Weber did not put a dollar amount on the donation requested, a building department spokesman estimated the equipment would cost at least $36,000.

ZALE TOLD the committee he would consider the deal as part of his efforts to persuade the city to accept ownership of all interior streets in the development, which includes townhouses and private homes. Courtyards, drives and parking areas, as well as the cul-de-sacs, would continue to be owned by a homeowners' association.

The developer repeatedly has said he feels the city should change its policy of considering interior streets in planned unit developments as private.

"I see serious problems for both the private citizen and the city in the future," he said. "One day, these people are going to wake up to the fact that they will have to pay money to repair these streets. I think suddenly they may come to you and say 'Why should we pay to maintain our streets? We pay taxes the same as everyone else in the city.'"

THE STREETS IN the Meadow Edge development meet all city standards, except width, and parking is not allowed on them. The city's minimum-width requirement is 27 feet, but Zale said his streets are 24 feet wide.

Zale is scheduled to appear before a special zoning commission Wednesday to further discuss plans for the development which already is under construction. The meeting will begin at 8 p.m. at city hall, 3600 Kirchoff Rd.

THE CRUISE MAY be in drydock, but the sailing is a dream. Patrick Dennis of Arlington Heights, a mechanic at Boat Supermarket, Rolling Meadows sets an imaginary sail for his private lost isle.

Arlington Heights 'guarantees' stadium vote

The Arlington Heights Village Board voted Monday night to guarantee a public referendum on the Arlington Park Race Track football stadium proposal if trustees should ever determine the project is financially feasible or desirable.

Trustee Alice Harms, one of two trustees to vote against the referendum, declared her opposition to any municipal financing for the $35 million stadium project.

The village board also authorized the Environmental Control Commission to interview consultants and make a recommendation on hiring a firm to perform an independent study of the environmental impact on the stadium.

The ECC has termed environmental reports furnished by the stadium developer "unacceptable" because of a lack of detail and has requested an independent study of air pollution, traffic, storm water control and solid waste disposal problems.

IN A THIRD stadium-related action, the trustees voted 5 to 3 to approve a contract for bond counselors who will advise and negotiate on behalf of the village with Madison Square Garden Corp. and the Chicago Bears football club.

An Arlington Heights Park Board resolution calling for annexation of the race track to the Arlington Heights Park District was tabled until Sept. 8 in order to give officials from the Salt Creek Rural Park District, where the race track now lies, an opportunity to appear before the village board.

The trustees made it clear they were not at this time recommending approval of village revenue bond financing for the stadium or a special-use permit approving the land use.

"The board may decide the stadium is not desirable, not financially feasible and there will be no bonds — no stadium — no referendum. The project will be dead," said Trustee David Griffin, who first called for a public referendum two weeks ago.

MRS. HARMS said she would approve a referendum on the basic question of the acceptability of a 78,000-seat stadium at the race track, but said she was now unequivocally opposed to any village financing for the facility. "The dangers inherent in a referendum are too great when it is really a question of the desirability or necessity of this stadium. I agree (with suggestions) that the municipality should decide that it will not be involved in the financing of a stadium," she said.

An audience of 150 persons, most of whom indicated they opposed the stadium, turned out for the latest round of village board decisions.

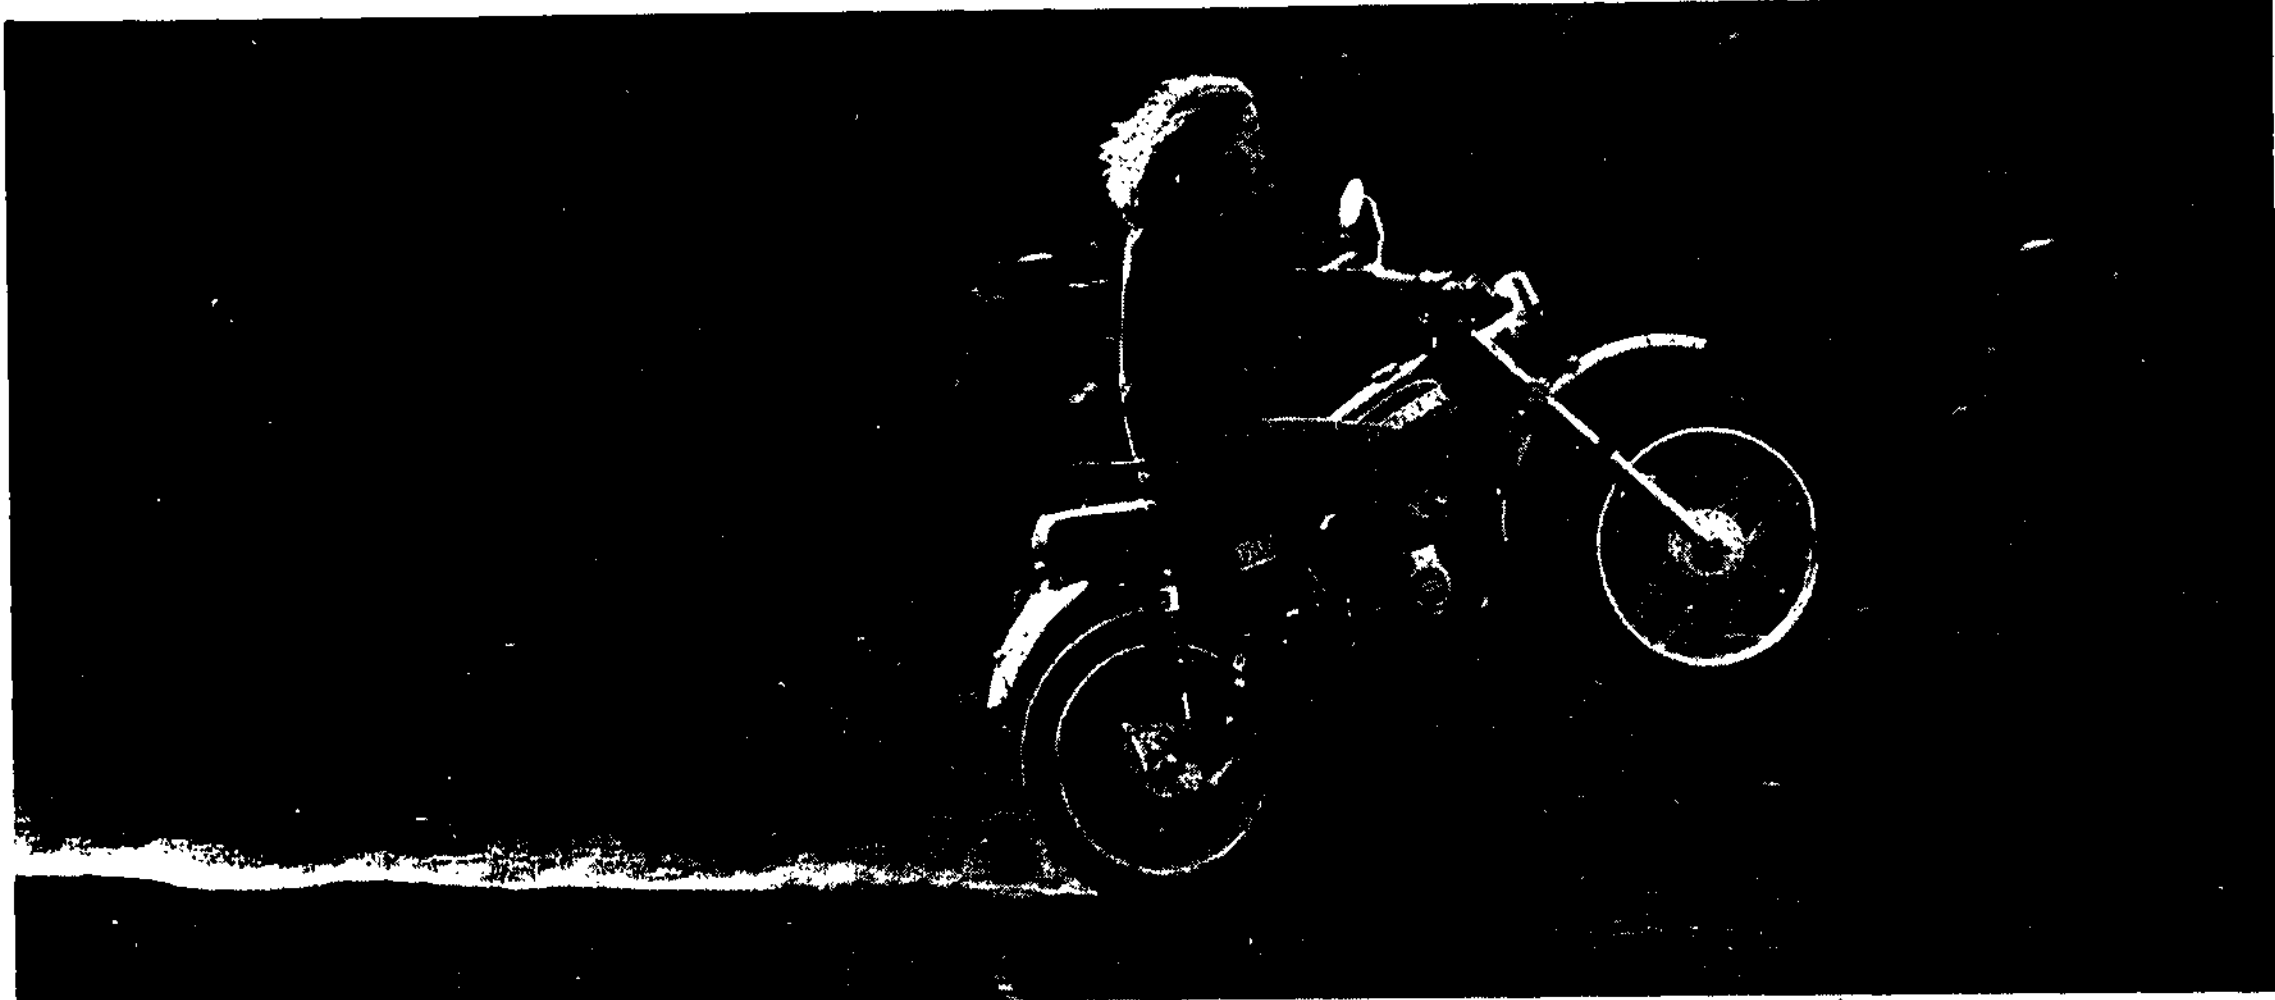

In retaining two financial advisers, Jon Nuveen and Smith Barney, the trustees stood by their earlier position that Madison Square Garden must pay the full cost of independent feasibility studies on the stadium, including the possible environmental impact report.

Village Atty. Jack M. Siegel said

Madison Square Garden officials, during a closed-door negotiating session last week, stopped short of guaranteeing the fees estimated at $50,000 for each report.

They understand they will have to come up with the "front money," Siegel said at one point. But he later said corporation officials had not formally agreed to pay the costs. "They wanted to know that the board was going to go ahead with firing its financial advisers."

Nuveen and Smith, Barney will work at no cost to the village. They will be paid out of proceeds from the stadium revenue bonds if they are eventually issued. The two advisers will recommend consulting firms to investigate the financial feasibility of the stadium.

Court rejects Arlington's housing appeal

by KURT BAER

The Village of Arlington Heights has been denied a rehearing by the U. S. Court of Appeals in the Viatorian low-income housing case.

Court judges voted 5 to 3 not to reconsider a June 10 decision in which Arlington Heights was found guilty of racial discrimination for refusing to rezone 15 acres of land east of St. Viator High School, Euclid Avenue and Dryden Place, for a subsidized housing development.

In a letter to village board members, Village Atty. Jack M. Siegel said he planned to prepare a petition to the U. S. Supreme Court for a hearing in the case.

The village has 90 days in which to file its petition asking the Supreme Court to take jurisdiction in the case by a writ of certiorari, an order to the lower court to turn over the trial record.

IF THE SUPREME Court refuses to hear the case, the appeals court decision would stand, and the village could not interfere with construction of the project.

There is no time limit for the Supreme Court to answer the village's petition. The court has adjourned for the summer, and will not reconvene until the fall.

Court battles over the Viatorian development, called Lincoln Green, have dragged on since June 1972, when the Metropolitan Housing Development Corp., which would build the project, filed suit in U. S. District Court charging that the village's refusal to rezone the property was racially discriminatory.

After a six-day trial in January 1974, U. S. District Court Judge Thomas R. McMillen upheld the village's position that the rejection was based solely on zoning considerations.

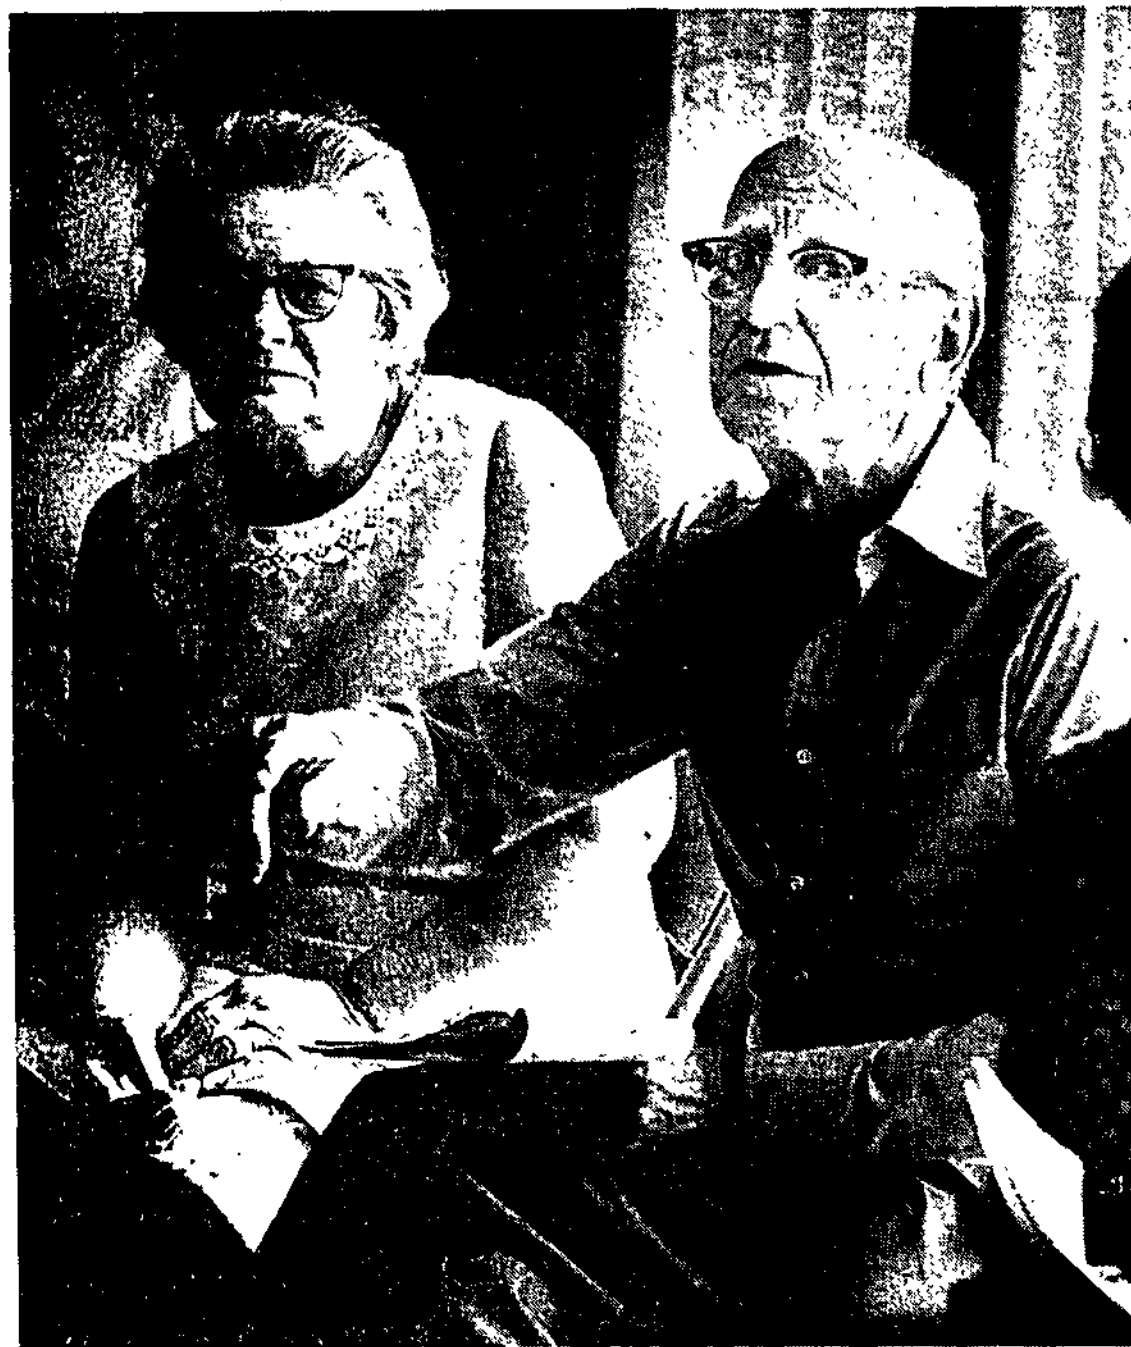

MIHDC APPEALED McMillen's ruling to the U. S. Court of Appeals which reversed the lower court in a 2 to 1 decision June 10. Six days later, the village board voted unanimously to appeal the case to the U. S. Supreme Court.

Before filing with the high court, Siegel said he would ask for a rehearing in the appeals court, either by the same three judges who heard the case originally or by all the judges in the Seventh Circuit.

Turndown of the rehearing request does not prejudice the village's chances for review by the Supreme Court, Siegel said.

Youth drop-in center looking for volunteers

The Bridge youth service drop-in center, 434½ N. Northwest Hwy., Palatine, is looking for volunteers to staff its programs.

Volunteers work one afternoon or evening each week on the drop-in center's counseling and special interest programs.

The drop-in center, which opened in June, provides a pool table and other games for teen-agers to use free of charge.

Gail Russell, drop-in center director, plans to expand the center this fall.

The center will begin offering ping-pong and Saturday night coffee houses twice each month this fall. The center is open from 2 to 10 p.m. weekdays.

Volunteers are needed to help serve the growing number of teens who use the center and to supervise the new programs that will be offered, she said.

Persons interested in volunteering should call 359-7490.

9 candidates for Dist. 15 schools post

Nine candidates have applied for the Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 board seat vacated by Robert Bliss last week.

Board Pres. Walter Sundling said the large number of applicants, five more than sought board seats in the regular April election, probably was

"Prompted by the letter sent out by Walter Kendall," the newest Dist. 15 board member. Kendall sent out nearly 80 letters to civic groups and individuals, soliciting applications for the board vacancy. The deadline for applications was 4 p.m. Monday.

Norman C. Knapp, 36, of 124 Elizabeth Ct., Palatine, became the ninth applicant Monday. Knapp is a group supervisor in the product engineering department of GTE Automatic Electric, Northlake. He and his family have lived in the district four years.

"I'm a dedicated individual with a sincere desire to be involved," Knapp said. He is chairman of the board for the Palatine Jaycees and an active member in the Presbyterian church. Three of his children attend Lake Louise School, and one is a recent graduate of Winston Park Junior High School.

OTHER APPLICANTS for the board are: William G. Rankin, 1750 W. Bonbury Rd., Palatine; James Chartier, 627 N. Greenwood Dr., Palatine; Stanley Eisenhammer, 1107 S. Wilke Rd., Arlington Heights; Leslie Forrest, 200 S. Maple Ave., Palatine; Patsy Kelly, 1048 W. Partridge Dr., Palatine; Irene Sjostedt, 314 Suffolk Ct., Hoffman Estates; Robert Wente, 3421 Richness, Rolling Meadows; and Ronald R. Hunter, 447 N. Willow Wood Dr., Palatine.

Board members will interview applicants Aug. 26 and Sept. 3. An appointment probably will be made at the regular board meeting Sept. 10, but must be made by Sept. 12 to stay within the legal 30-day appointment limit.

RTA shortchanging suburbs: officials

by STEVE FORSYTH

Suburban spokesmen Monday protested what they called "inequitable funding" from the Regional Transportation Authority and asked the federal government to investigate RTA funding practices.

The RTA drew criticism during a public hearing on a $50.5 million federal grant application that would help pay operating deficits in fiscal year 1976, which started July 1.

Lots Lovey, staff assistant for the North Suburban Mass Transit District, suggested that the Urban Mass Transportation Administration investigate the fairness of the proposed distribution of funds by the RTA.

"The NORTRAN board feels that the present RTA interim funding policy for suburban bus service is arbitrary, inequitable, discriminatory and will result in a decline in suburban bus service and patronage," she said.

AN AIDE TO U.S. Rep. Abner J. Mikva, D-10th, read a statement in which Mikva warned, "If the RTA hopes to acquire additional federal funds, it and other agencies throughout the country are going to have to show that they can use the funds that are available now in the most equitable and efficient manner."

Mikva said the RTA's proposed interim policy of fully funding only bus systems that pay for 65 per cent of their own costs does not meet the criterion of fairness.

NORTRAN has become the center of the funding issue because it is the first carrier to receive a grant in fiscal 1976. NORTRAN has been in financial trouble and needed a grant to meet payroll this month, but the system was not given full deficit financing because it only pays for 56 per cent of its costs.

Joseph DiJohn, NORTRAN executive director, said the district can qualify for more RTA money if it drops some minimal routes, but it would have to collect the remainder of its estimated $500,000 deficit from the 21 communities in the district.

DiJohn read several letters Monday from mayors in the district who are opposed to contributing local money when RTA taxes are being used to support other systems such as the Chicago Transit Authority.

DES PLAINES Mayor Herbert Behr sent a letter questioning the distribution of funds to the suburbs, and Niles Mayor Nicholas Blase went on record as opposing the RTA grant application. "In suburban areas, we must build routes, not cut them," Blase said.

Blase said the RTA discriminates by withholding funds from the suburbs while funding the CTA 100 per cent.

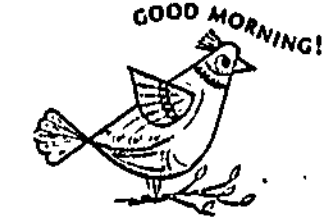

Village Pres. Virginia Hayter, Hoffman Estates, said her village cannot go ahead with transportation plans, even though a study has been completed, because there has been no definite indication of what the RTA will support.

Mrs. Hayter said Hoffman Estates needs public transit because it is five miles from each of the two commuter railroads serving the west and Northwest suburbs.

ON THE ISSUE of federal funding, Mrs. Hayter said her board is not interested in driving the federal government further into debt. She said Hoffman Estates has no position on the grant application "unless the RTA has a long-term commitment to help bring the federal budget back into balance."

She added, "I'm not so sure the black community realizes what you are doing — you're creating a problem of movement to and from the suburbs," she said.

Comments from Monday's public hearing will be sent to UMTA for review before the government takes action on the RTA grant application.

Village 'clarifies' stand in annexation dispute

The Palatine Village Board Monday night tentatively adopted two resolutions, providing conditions for the annexation of northern and western subdivisions to the village.

The village board, as a committee of the whole presented the resolutions "to clarify the village's stand" in response to questions raised recently by residents of the English Valley, Pepper Tree, Heatherlea and Shenandoah subdivisions north of the village, Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones said.

A separate resolution was drafted to cover upgrading costs for residents of Palatine Park Estates, west of Palatine, who have decided to join a petition drive on the annexation question.

Both resolutions state the following:

- Streetlights will be upgraded on the request of residents or if the health, safety and welfare of the residents is jeopardized.

- Streets and sidewalks are adequate and require no changes.
- Police protection will be provided uniformly throughout the village, including the newly annexed areas.

The 66 residents of Palatine Park Estates are served by the L and K. Utility Co., which is owned by the village.

The resolution for that subdivision provides that current water rates will remain the same, unless they do not cover the operation, purchase and maintenance costs of the utility, in which case the village will hire a bond consultant to "determine a fair and equitable rate."

The resolution for northern subdivisions residents provide that:

- Owners of septic tanks and wells will not be charged by the village unless the facilities become hazardous to other residents.
- Residents will continue to receive water services from the Ferndale Heights Utility Co. under present policies.
- Efforts will be made, through Palatine-Rolling Meadows School Dist. 15, to annex Palatine Hills Junior High School and Lincoln Elementary School.

The resolutions also state the village board "does not intend to spread special assessments beyond the areas that it benefits."

Trustee Bryan P. Coughlin, who made his first appearance after several months of illness, was the only board member who strongly objected to the resolutions, saying, "If these people are anxious for our services, fine. But I don't think the village should go out on a limb to get them to come into the village."

Drop-in center seeks volunteers

The Bridge youth service drop-in center, 434 1/2 N. Northwest Hwy., Palatine, is looking for volunteers to staff its programs.

Volunteers work one afternoon or evening each week on the drop-in center's counseling and special interest programs.

The drop-in center, which opened in June, provides a pool table and other games for teenagers to use free of charge.

The center also provides informal "rap" sessions with the professional counseling staff of The Bridge on

Gail Russell, drop-in center director, plans to expand the center this fall.

The center will begin offering ping-pong and Saturday night coffee houses twice each month this fall. The center is open from 2 to 10 p.m. weekdays.

Volunteers are needed to help serve the growing number of teens who use the center and to supervise the new programs that will be offered, she said.

Persons interested in volunteering should call 359-7400.

The village board is expected to finalize the resolutions at a regular meeting Aug. 25.

Representatives of the five unincorporated subdivisions Monday indicated a petition drive on the proposed annexations, which was scheduled to begin last weekend, will not start until next week.

An informal committee of residents has been formed to coordinate the drive and to distribute information about the impact and cost of the annexation to other residents.

The committee will meet with village officials at 10 a.m. Saturday at the village hall, 54 S. Brockway St.

CONSTRUCTION WORK on the $2.5 million extension of Euclid Avenue between Roselle and Plum Grove roads will be completed in November, county officials say. The work is being done by Milburn Brothers Inc. The road will provide a direct route from Arlington Heights to the Harper College campus.

Housing starts highest in year

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Housing starts increased by 13.7 per cent in July to the highest level in a year, the Commerce Department reported Monday.

Building permits, which signal still more new construction, increased also but at a more modest rate of 6 per cent from June, the department said.

Permits were issued at an annual adjusted rate of 1.007 million units.

The number of houses under construction in July was estimated at 1.238 million compared with a revised June rate of 1.088 million. It was the highest level since July 1974 when new units under construction totaled 1.314 million.

Housing Secretary Carla Hills said the July figures were "encouraging, particularly with regard to multifamily starts. This trend seems to indicate a continued recovery for the housing industry."

Although new home construction affects a relatively small percentage of the population at any given time, the industry's health is a significant measure of the economy as a whole.

In four major recessions since the Great Depression, housing construction

Arlington Heights 'guarantees' stadium vote

The Arlington Heights Village Board voted Monday night to guarantee a public referendum on the Arlington Park Race Track football stadium proposal if trustees should ever determine the project is financially feasible or desirable.

Trustee Alice Harms, one of two trustees to vote against the referendum, declared her opposition to any municipal financing for the $35 million stadium project.

The village board also authorized the Environmental Control Commission to interview consultants and make a recommendation on hiring a firm to perform an independent study of the environmental impact on the stadium.

The ECC has termed environmental reports furnished by the stadium developer "unacceptable" because of a lack of detail and has requested an independent study of air pollution, traffic, storm water control and solid waste disposal problems.

IN A THIRD stadium-related action, the trustees voted 5 to 3 to approve a contract for bond counselors who will advise and negotiate on behalf of the village with Madison Square Garden Corp. and the Chicago Bears football club.

An Arlington Heights Park Board resolution calling for annexation of the race track to the Arlington Heights Park District was tabled until Sept. 8 in order to give officials from the Salt Creek Rural Park District, where the race track now lies, an opportunity to appear before the village board.

The trustees made it clear they were not at this time recommending approval of village revenue bond financing for the stadium or a special-use permit approving the land use.

"The board may decide the stadium is not desirable, not financially feasible and there will be no bonds — no stadium — no referendum. The project will be dead," said Trustee David Griffin, who first called for a public referendum two weeks ago.

MRS. HARMS said she would approve a referendum on the basic question of the acceptability of a 76,000-seat stadium at the race track, but said she was now unequivocally opposed to any village financing for the facility. "The dangers inherent in a referendum are too great when it is really a question of the desirability or necessity of this stadium. I agree (with suggestions) that the municipality should decide that it will not be involved in the financing of a stadium," she said.

An audience of 150 persons, most of whom indicated they opposed the stadium, turned out for the latest round of village board decisions.

In retaining two financial advisers, Jon Nuveen and Smith Barney, the trustees stood by their earlier position that Madison Square Garden must pay the full cost of independent feasibility studies on the stadium, including the possible environmental impact report.

Village Atty. Jack M. Siegel said

Madison Square Garden officials, during a closed-door negotiating session last week, stopped short of guaranteeing the fees estimated at $50,000 for each report.

They understand they will have to come up with the "front money," Siegel said at one point. But he later said corporation officials had not formally agreed to pay the costs. "They wanted to know that the board was going to go ahead with firing its financial advisers."

Nuveen and Smith, Barney will work at no cost to the village. They will be paid out of proceeds from the stadium revenue bonds if they are eventually issued. The two advisers will recommend consulting firms to investigate the financial feasibility of the stadium.

139-unit housing project planned

The Inverness Plan Commission is reviewing a proposed 139-unit housing project in the southwest corner of the village.

Palatine Developer Elmer Gleich presented plans for the 80-acre "Bonnie Rigg" subdivision to the Inverness Village Board.

Erich Kuntze Jr., another local developer, received village approval several years ago for a luxury condominium development at the same location, west of Elm Road between Freeman Road and Ill. Rte. 62. Kuntze has allowed a village building permit to expire, without starting the project.

GLEICH SAID the minimum lot requirements are 20,000 square feet (less than half an acre) and the density of the project is 1.7 units per acre, which conforms with village density regulations.

The houses, which will be ranch and two-story of various styles, will be sold for an average $90,000.

Project plans also include a two-acre retention pond in the northwest corner of the development, he said. "We expect to have most of the homes completed in three years, and we'll start as soon as we get village approval," Gleich said.

Russell V. Puzey, village president, said it will take six to 15 months to have the project approved on all village levels.

GLEICH SAID he has "promised" to make a contribution to Palatine-Rolling Meadows School Dist. 15. Children living in the development would attend a new elementary school to be completed by next year in the Winston Knolls subdivision of Hoffman Estates, just west of the project.

There also is a future high school site owned by School Dist. 211 north of the area.

Gleich has developed several Palatine subdivisions, including Danbury Lane, Pebble Creek and Reseda, which are located on Hicks Road, south of Dundee Road.

Inverness, village to join in revising master plans

The Inverness Village Board has agreed to work with the Village of Palatine under a federal program to revise both villages' master plans and coordinate land development between the two towns.

The Palatine Village Board has not considered the proposal, although Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones tentatively has approved the idea.

Steven Lenet, Palatine village planner, met this week with Inverness village officials to discuss the proposal.

Lenet said he is drawing up a written agreement which will require approval by both village boards. Lenet said he will apply for federal funds after an agreement has been finalized.

Both villages intend to revise their master plans this year. Palatine has obtained a $15,000 federal grant to pay part of its estimated $40,000 master plan revision, Lenet said.

Under a cooperative local government program, the federal government would finance two-thirds of the cost of revising the villages' master plans. The villages would share the remaining one-third, Lenet said.

Lenet has proposed an independent consultant be hired to make a land-plan study of both villages and the unincorporated areas surrounding them.

Inverness village officials have suggested the firm of Barton-Aschman be hired. The firm has done land planning work for both villages.

Winston parents will pay to bus kids to school

Parents in Winston Park Unit Six subdivision have decided to pay to have their children bused to Lake Louise School rather than risk accidents at Palatine Road and Winston Drive.

Dorothy Salski, 150 Patricia Ln., Palatine, said Unit Six parents are prepared to pay $15 per semester for each child to have students bused north of that intersection to Lake Louise School, "because we don't think we can go any further. The state says the intersection is safe, so we don't think there's anything further we can do," she said.

Because of the dangerous intersection Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 has bused Unit Six children to Lake Louise School since the subdivision was built despite the fact the school is closer than the 1.5-mile limit for mandatory busing.

BUT THIS YEAR, the district will stop busing the children because state officials say a recently installed traffic signal and "walk" light make the intersection safe for pedestrians.

Mrs. Salski said she received a letter from Dist. 15 Supt. Frank Whiteley which outlined further safety precautions reported at last week's board meeting.

School crossing signs will be installed approaching the intersection, and the "walk" light timing will be lengthened, if necessary, by a state traffic engineer on the first day of school, Aug. 29. A Palatine policeman or crossing guard also will be assigned to the intersection, the letter said.

"Since they had this state traffic engineer out, he claims this is a safe area," Mrs. Salski said. "We don't know what else we can really do."

UNIT SIX parents were to have met Monday night to decide their next move, but Mrs. Salski said the decision to pay for busing was reached over the weekend. "With school starting in two weeks, we wanted to make sure we'd have a bus," she said.

Whiteley said there will be buses available for those 120 Unit Six students who wish to pay for transportation. Letters will be going out to eligible families describing the parent-paid bus service, he said.

9 seek Bliss' Dist. 15 board seat

Nine candidates have applied for the Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 board seat vacated by Robert Bliss last week.

Board Pres. Walter Sundling said the large number of applicants, five more than sought board seats in the regular April election, probably was

"Prompted by the letter sent out by Walter Kendall," the newest Dist. 15 board member. Kendall sent out nearly 80 letters to civic groups and individuals, soliciting applications for the board vacancy. The deadline for applications was 4 p.m. Monday.

Junior high area changed

Residents of the Arlington Crest subdivision in Palatine will now be able to send their children to a Palatine junior high school instead of Rolling Meadows' Carl Sandburg Junior High School.

Board members decided Wednesday to make Winston Park Junior High School the home school for the Palatine subdivision. The decision currently affects less than 20 junior high students from that area, but board members may consider allowing elementary pupils from the subdivision attend Palatine schools after Jefferson School is built in Hoffman Estates, said Frank Whiteley, district superintendent.

Parents asked the board to allow their children to attend Palatine elementary and junior high schools because they will eventually go to High School Dist. 211 high schools. Rolling Meadows elementary schools feed into High School Dist. 214 schools.

Budget on public display

Dist. 15's proposed $18.6 million 1975-76 budget will be on display in all district schools this month prior to a public budget hearing scheduled for Sept. 17. A written summary of the budget's major increases and decreases will accompany each display document. A copy of the proposed budget also will be on display at the district offices, 505 S. ## $10 to $200 fines OK'd for littering

The Palatine Village Board has adopted an anti-litter ordinance which places fines ranging from $10 to $200 on litter violations.

The ordinance, which was prepared by the Environmental Control Board, prohibits leaving handbills on vehicles, vacant premises and residences unless the handbill is secured to prevent it from being blown onto the streets.

The posting of notices of sales, events and contests on public rights of way also is prohibited and must be removed 48 hours after the event has occurred. The posting of political posters on public rights of way is prohibited and campaign posters must be removed 48 hours after the election.

Also prohibited in the ordinance are the throwing of litter in public places and vacant lots, littering from vehicles, throwing litter into lakes and dropping litter from aircraft.

The fines for violation of the ordinance are $10 to $200 for the first offense, $25 to $200 for the second offense and $50 to $200 for the third offense.

Passarelli on Inverness board

Betsy Passarelli has been appointed to the Inverness Village Board to fill a vacancy created last month by the resignation of Walter D. Pugh.

Mrs. Passarelli has served for two years on the Inverness Zoning Board of Appeals and as president of the Women's Club of Inverness.

Her professional background includes working as an elementary school teacher in Iowa, a registered nurse in several Chicago hospitals and a real estate agent in the area.

She is a humanities graduate of the University of Chicago and has received training at the Cook County School of Nursing.

Mrs. Passarelli will serve as chairman of the village's police and fire committee, a position formerly held by Pugh.

Pugh resigned from the village board in July to move to New York for a job transfer. He is a management consultant for Price, Waterhouse and Co.

Village Pres. Russell V. Puzey recommended Mrs. Passarelli, and she was approved unanimously. She will serve until the next regular village election in April 1977.

Suburban spokesmen Monday protested what they called "inequitable funding" from the Regional Transportation Authority and asked the federal government to investigate RTA funding practices.

NORTAN has been in financial trouble and needed a grant to meet payrolls this month, but the system was not given full deficit financing because it only pays for 55 per cent of its costs.

Joseph DiJohn, NORTAN executive director, said the district can qualify for more RTA money if it drops some minimal routes, but it would have to collect the remainder of its estimated $500,000 deficit from the 21 communities in the district.

DiJohn read several letters Monday from mayors in the district who are opposed to contributing local money when RTA taxes are being used to support other systems such as the Chicago Transit Authority.

DES PLAINES Mayor Herbert Behrel sent a letter questioning the distribution of funds to the suburbs, and Niles Mayor Nicholas Blase went on record as opposing the RTA grant application. "In suburban areas, we must build routes, not cut them," Blase said.

Blase said the RTA discriminates by withholding funds from the suburbs while funding the CTA 100 per cent.

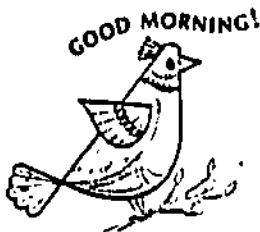

Village Pres. Virginia Hayter, Hoffman Estates, said her village cannot go ahead with transportation plans, even though a study has been completed, because there has been no definite indication of what the RTA will support.

Mrs. Hayter said Hoffman Estates needs public transit because it is five miles from each of the two commuter railroads serving the west and North-west suburbs.

ON THE ISSUE of federal funding, Mrs. Hayter said her board is not interested in driving the federal government further into debt. She said Hoffman Estates has no position on the grant application "unless the RTA has a long-term commitment to help bring the federal budget back into balance."

She added, "I'm not so sure the black community realizes what you are doing — you're creating a problem of movement to and from the suburbs," she said.

Comments from Monday's public hearing will be sent to UMTA for review before the government takes action on the RTA grant application.

Same money mess next year?

Budget jumble clear—for now

by LYNN ASINOF
(A news analysis)

For the last several months, the Mount Prospect Village Board has been bogged down in a financial quagmire because of disagreement over how to finance $371,000 in authorized employee pay increases.

In private session, the board members unanimously voted to grant most employees an 8 per cent pay hike, with firemen getting a 9 per cent increase. Since the raises were not included in the budget, the board was then faced with finding the money.

Two trustees, having voted in favor of the raises, tried to finance them by calling for cuts in the village budget, which was prepared and approved by a previous board.

Trustee Leo Floros was the most vocal board member to call for budget cuts. Having campaigned for election in April by condemning the village's increasing tax rate, Floros called for belt-tightening, but did not say what parts of the budget should be trimmed.

ALTHOUGH OTHER board members opposed him, often critically chastising him for a shotgun approach to the problem, Floros refused to compromise his stand.

Floros was backed by Trustee Richard N. Hendricks, who voted for the raises and then spoke against them at public meetings.

Between the two, they effectively killed at least one proposal that would have provided funds to cover the cost of raises.

Other board members have not been immune from getting their digs into their political adversaries on the board. Each has come up with his own pet proposal for raising the money, with those proposals often leading to the downfall of others which already have won tentative approval by the board.

In a committee-of-the-whole meeting, a majority of the board approved a $3 monthly garbage rate increase which would have provided the revenue.

THE GARBAGE proposal died, however, when both Trustee Michael H. Minton and Mayor Robert D. Teichert changed their votes. Minton changed his vote, opting for a business tax proposal, which he later said could not be enacted in time to raise the needed revenue.

Teichert, on the other hand, said residents' request that the garbage fee remain on their property tax bill was the thing that changed his mind.

Trustee Theodore J. Wattenberg accused the board of lacking the courage to do its duty and raise the funds needed to cover the pay increases.

Trustee Edward B. Rhea Jr., considered by his fellow board members as their financial expert, has complained that the board is ignoring all sound financial management techniques.

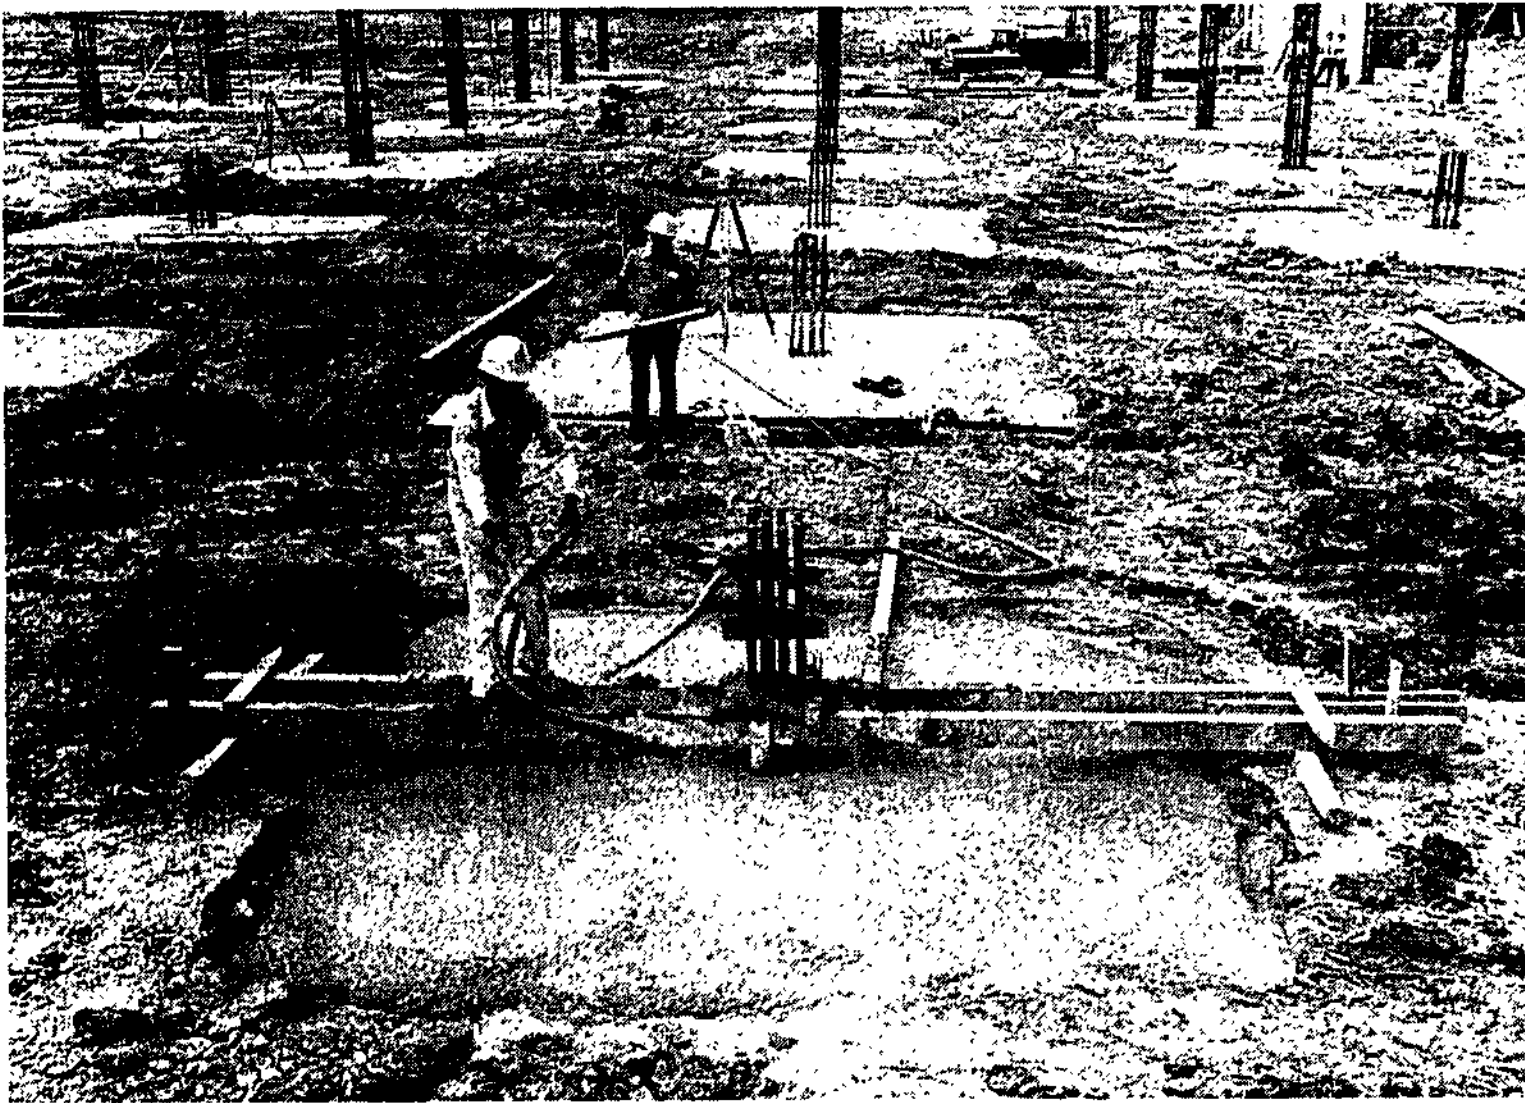

Floros has accused other independents who won election to the board after campaigning against runaway spending of turning their back on their campaign promises.

TEICHERT HAS charged the board looks ridiculous to the public for failing to make any decisions at all.

Hendricks has said virtually nothing, but has voted for budget cuts and against all other proposals.

The board last week finally agreed unanimously to use the village's financial cushion created by a quirk in tax collection to cover the raises.

Board members understand, however, that nothing has been solved, since the tax money is available only once and the village budget will be short at least $371,000 next year.

THE NEW Mount Prospect Public Library is under construction as workmen begin pouring the foundations which will be part of the

tral School site, Main Street and Central Road.

25 cents per $100 assessed valuation

Schools OK Sept. 27 tax increase referendum

by JUDY JOBBITT

A Sept. 27 referendum will be held in Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 to seek a 25-cent per $100 assessed valuation education-tax-rate increase.

The board of education Monday approved setting the 25-cent tax referendum despite an administration request for a 40-cent per $100 assessed valuation tax rate increase.

"I oppose a 40-cent increase," said Board Pres. Judith Zanca. "I'd like to recommend a 25-cent increase — 20 cents for the deficit resulting from our decreased state aid and 5 cents for inflation and other financial problems."

Supt. Roger Bardwell recommended the higher tax-rate increase saying only 15 cents would be used initially. The remainder of the increase would have been implemented in conjunction with the required tax rate reduction in High School Dist. 214.

BOARD MEMBER Emil Bahmaier said he could not seek a 40-cent increase, because "our track record as a board chopping back on the budget has not been the greatest."

"We must show the voters that we are not only asking for more money, but are willing to take measures to pull ourselves out" of a deficit, said Bahmaier.

Mrs. Zanca said she opposed the 40-cent increase, because "once you give the educators the money, you lose control."

"I just don't feel I could justify any more than 25 cents," said Mrs. Zanca. The district is projecting a $1.67 million deficit in the education and building funds for the 1975-76 school year. Surplus funds from last year and money from the working cash fund will make up for the deficit this year. However, neither fund includes salary increases this year which would add to the projected deficit.

The district also is receiving $2.1 million less from state aid this year, partly because of declining enrollment. The district also is not receiving the maximum state aid allowed, because its tax rate is below the required $1.95 per $100 assessed valuation level.

A tax increase of 15 cents per $100 assessed valuation would bring the district up to the level required by the state to receive full state aid.

JOSEPH STECKER, a Dist. 59 resident and finance committee member, said he doesn't "see how the board can ask for one single penny before I see some cutting of the budget." He presented the board with recommendations for cutting about $1 million from this year's budget.

Mrs. Zanca said the budget committee is reviewing the budget for possible cuts. Updated figures for the administration show education budget cuts of $247,644, which includes $170,792 for the Northwest Suburban Special Education deaf education program. Dist. 59 had proposed moving the deaf education program from Arlington Heights Dist. 25 to Dist. 59. The NSSEO board has decided to leave the program at its current location in Dist. 25.

Minton tells village board:

'Urge county to buy golf course'

Trustee Michael H. Minton has called on the Mount Prospect Village Board to formally recommend that the County Forest Preserve District purchase the 200-acre Rob Roy Golf Course.

Noting his opposition to apartment development, Minton said the board might effectively fight development of the golf course by urging the forest preserve district to buy the land.

"In the event that Rob Roy is to be considered for multiple-family dwellings in the future, Mount Prospect certainly has an overriding interest in the discussed purchase of this property," Minton said in a memo to the board. Kenroy Inc. has proposed to build a 2,350-unit apartment complex on the golf course on Euclid Avenue east of Wheeling Road. Mount Prospect turned down Kenroy's bid for zoning and annexation for the project, and the developer has discussed seeking appropriate zoning from the county.

THE PROJECT is at a stalemate with developers waiting for controversy over the matter to calm down. Kenroy has indicated that if the property is developed, half the land might be preserved if the River Trails Park District can find money to purchase the course.

A citizens' advisory committee has recommended against the forest preserve district purchase of Rob Roy, citing high acquisition costs and the proximity to other golf courses.

The 200-acre course is valued at $50,000 an acre, or a total of $10 million. It is only 9 miles from the Highland Woods Golf Course which will open soon near Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates.

Minton said he will call for the board to formally endorse the purchase at tonight's village board meeting, since the forest preserve district acquisition is to be considered in September.

Housing starts highest in year

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Housing starts increased by 13.7 per cent in July to the highest level in a year, the Commerce Department reported Monday.

Building permits, which signal still more new construction, increased also but at a more modest rate of 6 per cent from June, the department said. Permits were issued at an annual adjusted rate of 1,007 million units.

The number of houses under construction in July was estimated at 1,238 million compared with a revised June rate of 1,098 million. It was the highest level since July 1974 when new units under construction totaled 1,314 million.

Housing Secretary Carla Hills said the July figures were "encouraging, particularly with regard to multifamily starts. This trend seems to indicate a continued recovery for the housing industry."

Although new home construction affects a relatively small percentage of the population at any given time, the industry's health is a significant measure of the economy as a whole.

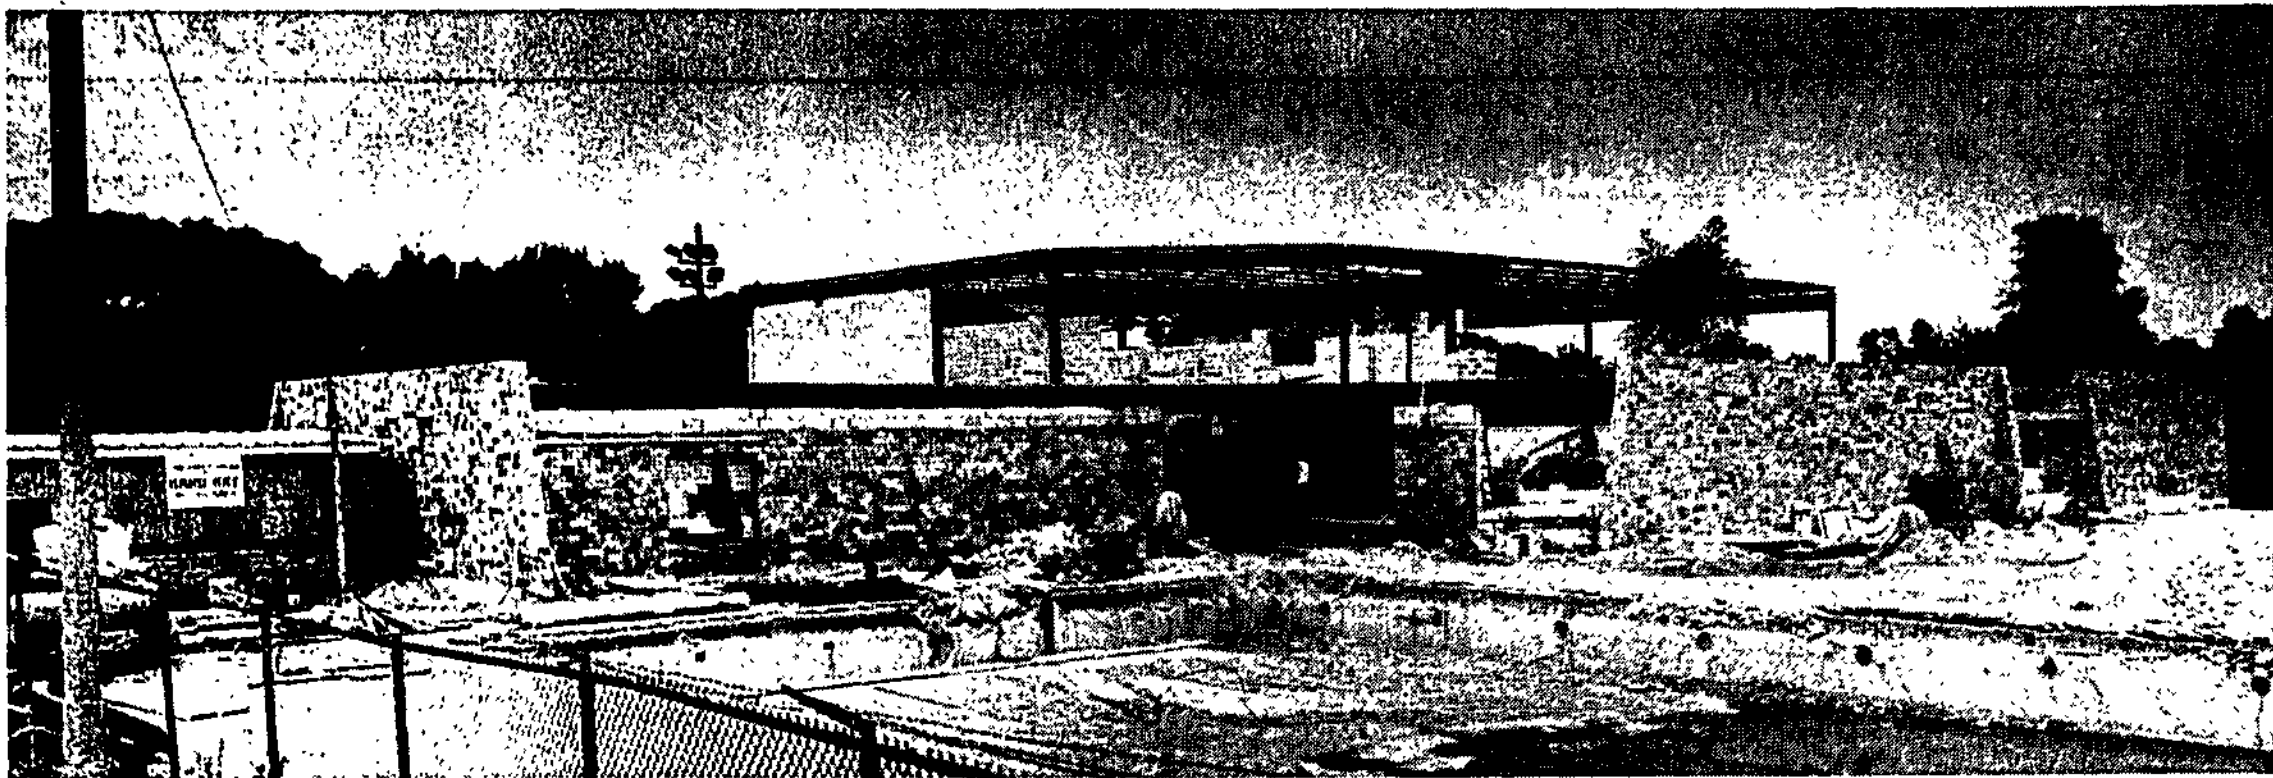

In four major recessions since the Great Depression, housing construction

Brick walls give form to the Prospect Heights Park District community center/sports complex on Camp McDonald Road at Elm Street.

Sports complex work proceeding on schedule

Construction on the Prospect Heights Park District's new community center-sports complex, which is costing in excess of $800,000, is continuing on schedule.

Prospect Heights Park Director Ronald Greenberg said the contractor estimates the building will be completed "shortly after the first of the year." The referendum-approved center is being built at Lions Park, Camp McDonald Road and Elm Street.

Work on the renovation of the district's pool is to start next week, with the new gutter system scheduled to be installed beginning Sept. 21. The old pool was closed for the summer because of the construction work.

New fencing and lights have been installed at the Lions Park baseball field, and although the lights are operational now, the Little League season has ended.

Greenberg said the first two of three layers of asphalt have been put in for the six tennis courts and Lions

Park. Fencing for the courts should be installed sometime during the next two weeks. The courts should be finished by early September, he said.

At Commonwealth Edison Park, south of the Country Gardens subdivision, grading and laying of gravel for the parking lot and foot paths is nearly complete, Greenberg said. Work on the tennis courts there is proceeding at about the same pace as the Lions Park courts.

"The very good weather recently has helped," Greenberg said.

Work is on schedule for the Prospect Heights Park District's new facilities.

Officials weigh regulating campers

The Mount Prospect Village Board tonight will consider a resolution establishing an ad hoc committee to study the need for regulation of recreational vehicles.

The resolution was written after the board's judiciary committee conducted two lengthy hearings on the need for regulations to prohibit the parking of recreational vehicles in front of residential homes.

As a result of the controversy generated by the hearings, residents on both sides agreed a special ad hoc committee should be formed to learn what regulations are needed.

The board also is scheduled to consider an ordinance to eliminate the practice of granting free vehicle stickers to village board members and village employees. Commission members, however, would continue to get free stickers.

The meeting will begin at 8 p.m. at the village hall, 112 E. Northwest Hwy.

Carnival to fight dystrophy

A giant neighborhood carnival is scheduled Saturday at the Mount Prospect Plaza, Rand and Central roads, Mount Prospect.

As part of "Kids for Kids Day," the carnival will be used to raise money to fight muscular dystrophy. Youngsters interested in operating booths at the carnival should reserve space by calling 253-0644 during the day or 543-3329 at night.

Golf outing to aid Crusade

The Mount Prospect Crusade of Mercy will kick off its 1975 drive with a golf outing from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday and Sunday at the Mount Prospect Golf Course.

Golfers can participate in both events, which include longest drive and closest-to-the-pin contests. There is a $1 entry fee for each event.

The local Crusade of Mercy is aiming to raise $31,000 in its 1975 campaign, with the money to be used to help finance 14 local agencies.

Arlington Heights 'guarantees' stadium vote

The Arlington Heights Village Board voted Monday night to guarantee a public referendum on the Arlington Park Race Track football stadium proposal if trustees should ever determine the project is financially feasible or desirable.

Trustee Alice Harms, one of two trustees to vote against the referendum, declared her opposition to any municipal financing for the $35 million stadium project.

The village board also authorized the Environmental Control Commission to interview consultants and make a recommendation on hiring a firm to perform an independent study of the environmental impact on the stadium.

The ECC has termed environmental reports furnished by the stadium developer "unacceptable" because of a lack of detail and has requested an independent study of air pollution, traffic, storm water control and solid waste disposal problems.

IN A THIRD stadium-related action, the trustees voted 5 to 3 to approve a contract for bond counselors who will advise and negotiate on behalf of the village with Madison Square Garden Corp. and the Chicago Bears football club.

An Arlington Heights Park Board resolution calling for annexation of the race track to the Arlington Heights Park District was tabled until Sept. 8 in order to give officials from the Salt Creek Rural Park District, where the race track now lies, an opportunity to appear before the village board.

The trustees made it clear they were not at this time recommending approval of village revenue bond financing for the stadium or a special-use permit approving the land use.

"The board may decide the stadium is not desirable, not financially feasible and there will be no bonds — no stadium — no referendum. The project will be dead," said Trustee David Griffin, who first called for a public referendum two weeks ago.

MRS. HARMS said she would approve a referendum on the basic question of the acceptability of a 76,000-seat stadium at the race track, but said she was now unequivocally opposed to any village financing for the facility. "The dangers inherent in a referendum are too great when it is really a question of the desirability or necessity of this stadium. I agree (with suggestions) that the municipality should decide that it will not be involved in the financing of a stadium," she said.

An audience of 150 persons, most of whom indicated they opposed the stadium, turned out for the latest round of village board decisions.

In retaining two financial advisers, Jon Nuveen and Smith Barney, the trustees stood by their earlier position that Madison Square Garden must pay the full cost of independent feasibility studies on the stadium, including the possible environmental impact report.

Village Atty. Jack M. Siegel said Madison Square Garden officials, during a closed-door negotiating session last week, stopped short of guaranteeing the fees estimated at $50,000 for each report.
